Marian,

It's been really great taking classes with you this past year. You are a really sweet girl. Next while sitting in Class think about the good times we had this year. It's been hard trying to get away from this old place but some how and another I feel I don't really want to leave. I can never forget the years I spent here at dear old West. These were inspiring years and you helped make them this way. You are all a person could ask in friend. Everybody needs a friend and you make a good one. You deserve the better things in life and I hope you won't have to reach for to get them. There's hard work in everything and you're a harder worker. Always be Marian don't ever Change and you'll be very successful in life.

God Bless You,
Johnnie Mae

In co-ordination with Tacky Day activities, Mr. Joe Fitzsimmons and Miss Susan Kessler portray characters from "Laugh-In" during the homecoming day pep rally.

Students, Faculty Combine for Tacky Day Skits

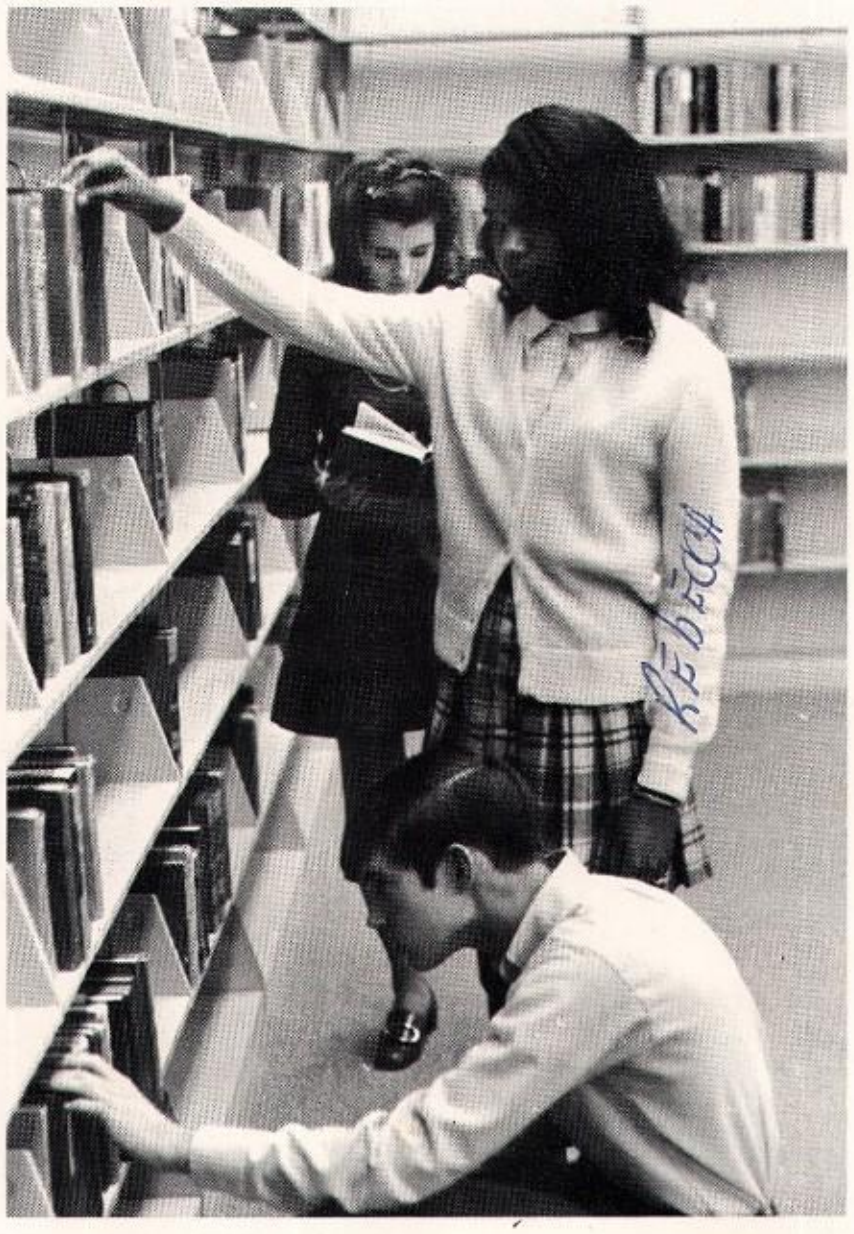
To increase their knowledge and understanding, students worked industriously to complete their assigned studies. Students chose courses from a wide variety of vocational and elective as well as required subjects. Five subjects were new to the curriculum. These included Afro-American culture, economics, sociology, fashion merchandising, and SAT social science seminar.

Guidance counselors aided students in selecting courses which would greatly help them in the future and supervised the PSAT for juniors and the SAT for seniors.

Faculty members chaperoned at dances, pep rallies, and sporting events; they also accepted the responsibility of the concession stand at basketball games. Most important of all, they aided students in their quest for knowledge.

After plasticoating identification cards, Mrs. Carolyn Yandle cuts them apart before distributing to students.

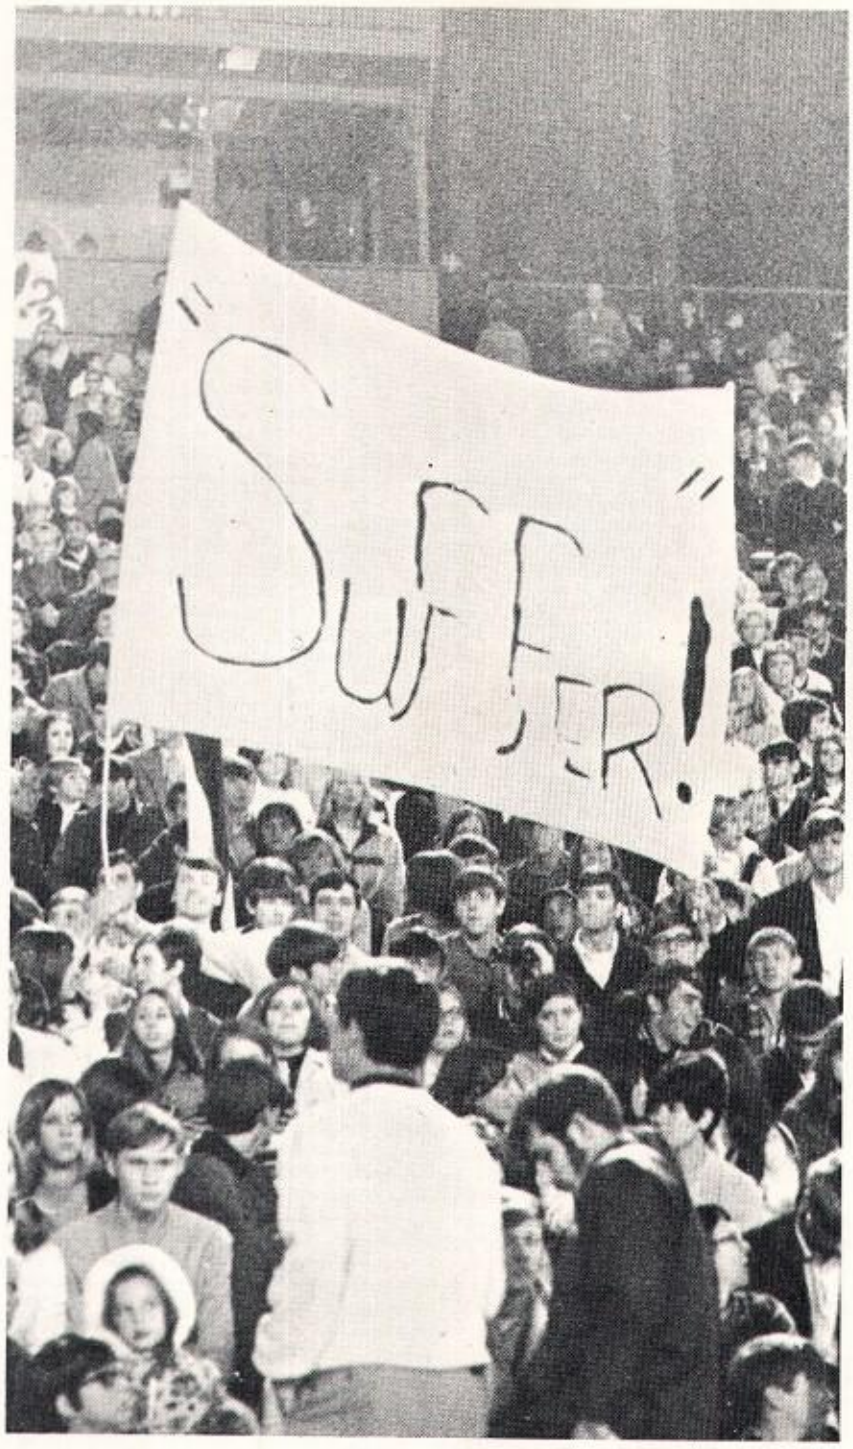
Sophomores P. Booker, R. Cathey, and D. Sharpe scan the shelves in search of books for use in writing reports.



Routine, Special Events Represent Student Life

Routine and special events represented student life as the days, weeks, and months passed for students. Each day brought new and exciting experiences for those who participated actively in school life. Each student added to the unity of the everyday school spirit and life by taking part in various clubs, sports, and other organizations.

Long classes, short lunch periods, laughter, bells, lockers, announcements – these things characterized an ordinary school day. Special events such as Homecoming, pep rallies, barbecue, dances, "Tacky Indian Day," and Junior-Senior broke the monotony of the common experience of every day. Through each experience students found a special place.



After a touchdown by the Indians, fans intimidate the Myers Park Mustangs by waving a school spirit banner.

Executing a breast stroke as a member of newly-formed swim team, Lewis Guignard displays his swimming ability.

During intermission at the Junior-Senior, students pause from an evening of dancing and entertainment as they listen to introductions of class officers and escorts.

Before homeroom Blue and Beatty obtain books for their classes.

Teams Go on Warpath, Establish New Records

Athletic teams displayed great ability and sportsmanship game after game. Spirit of competition and a sense of pride prevailed in each sport. Setting new records, Indians worked together to win and to perform well.

To the boys a variety of sports was available, including football, basketball, wrestling, baseball, golf, tennis, track, and cross country. Field hockey, basketball, and volleyball composed the program offered to the girls.

Coaches also played a vital part in the success of the teams. These competent men provided the instruction and inspiration needed to win.

In a seasonal track meet, Marion Hayes demonstrates co-ordination and body agility in the 120-yard high hurdles.

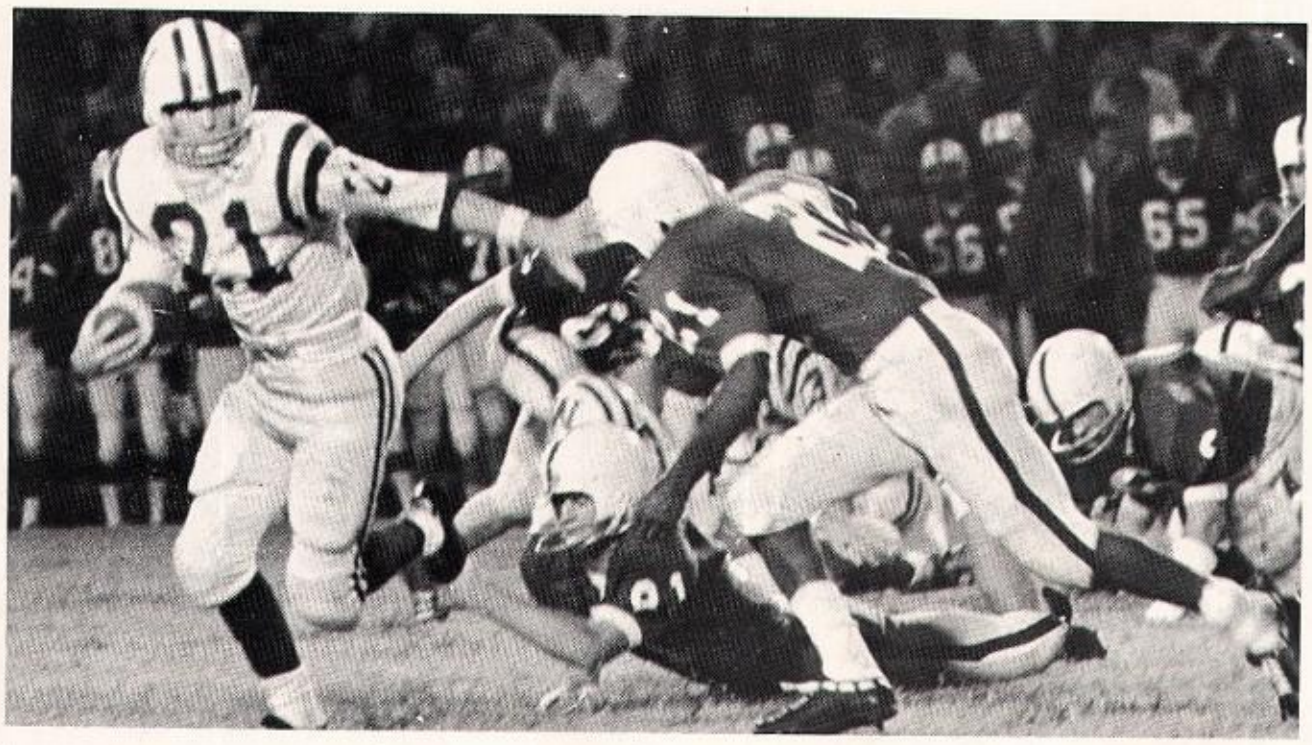
All-county half back Paul Millner sweeps around right end to gain yardage toward a first down for the Indians in the homecoming game against North Mecklenburg.



Band members, majorettes, and Indianettes stand at attention before beginning pregame activities at the final game of the season played against Myers Park.

R. Eller portrays a character from a well-known play.

Organizations Provide Extracurricular Program

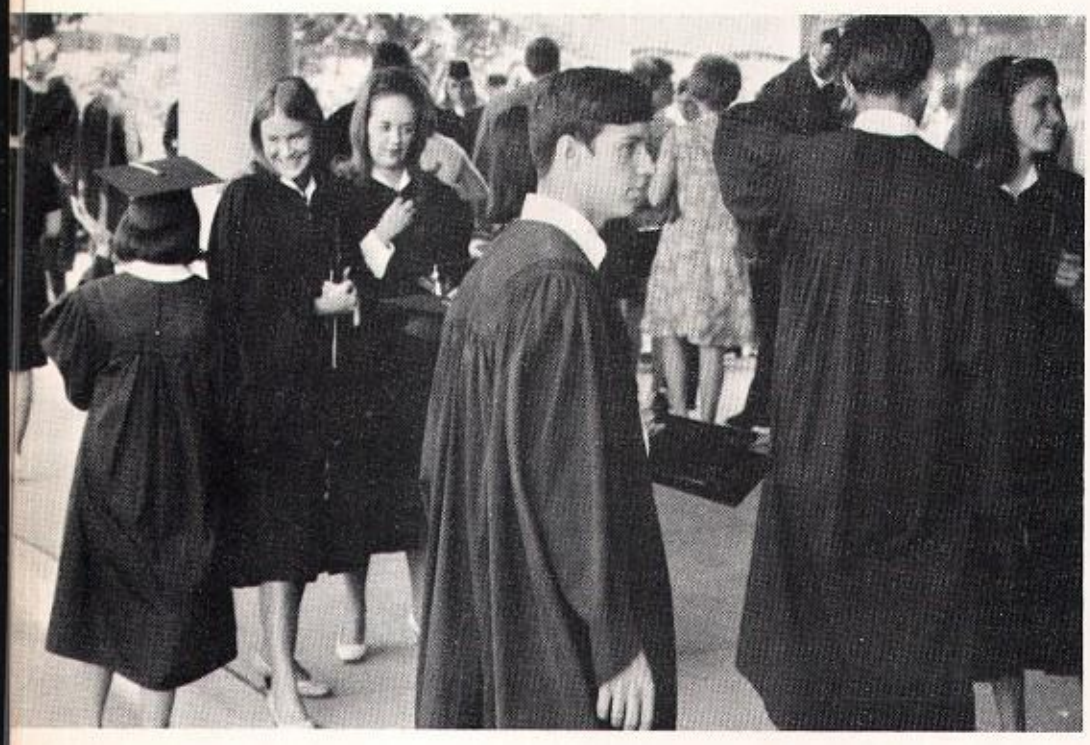
Various activities provided a well-rounded extracurricular program for interested students. These activities provided an opportunity for students to achieve personal satisfaction through work in an organization. Students gained experience, worked together, offered service, and accepted responsibility through involvement. Club activities included service projects, lectures, field trips, inductions, and others specified by each club.

Membership in curriculum clubs was limited to those students enrolled in a sponsoring course. In service clubs, students worked together to help others. Those who achieved high scholastic standings received honorary recognition in the National Honor Society.

To create an appropriate atmosphere for a chorus presentation, Tim Collins and Steve Helton decorate the stage.

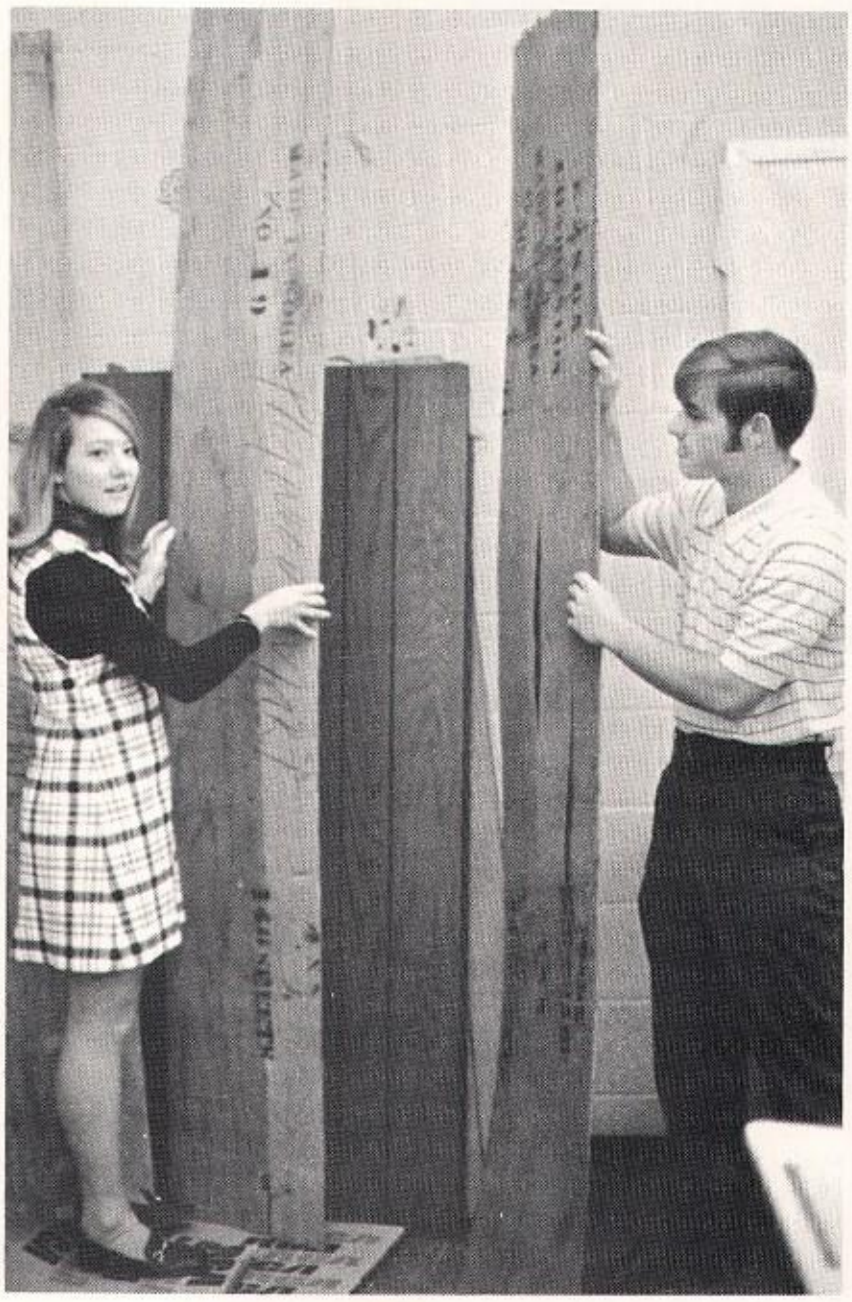
Keyettes S. Brisendine, J. Matheny, and V. Sifford work to complete Christmas presents for faculty members.

Rivalry Prompts Classes To Set Higher Goals



After graduation exercises at Ovens Auditorium, seniors clutch diplomas as they talk to parents and friends.

Juniors G. Vaughn and G. Stewart move plywood to the shop to construct scenery for the Junior-Senior prom.



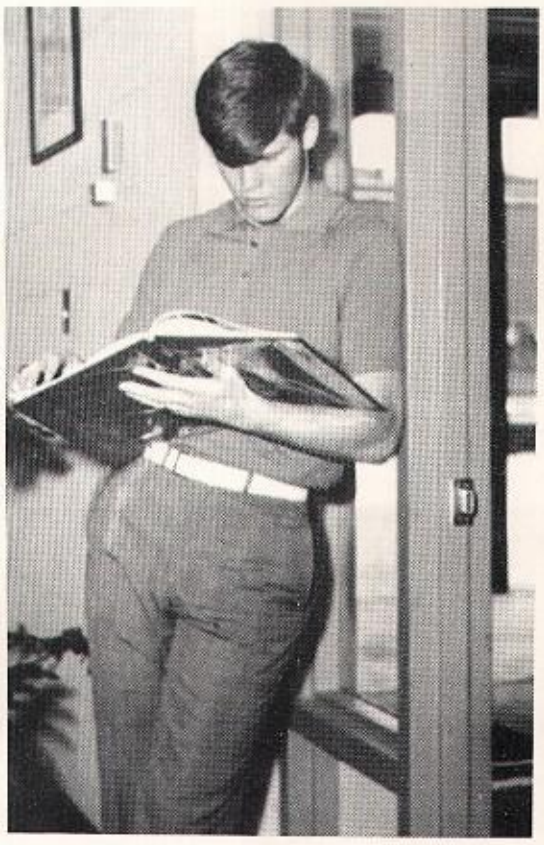
Natural class rivalry prompted each class to set higher goals for the 1969-70 year. Although each class worked to reach its own goals, all students joined to help make West a better school. Sophomores enjoyed an orientation social during the first weeks of school and also viewed a performance of Love's Labors Lost at Ovens Auditorium in February.

Juniors worked during the fall to sell Christmas cards to finance the Junior-Senior, and they later planned and created an unforgetable prom evening. After receiving rings, seniors worked to secure more privileges. Graduation climaxed three years of participating and learning.

As part of orientation, sophomores D. Cox and C. Gordan enjoy refreshments and music by the Cruel Deception.

Rita Harrison and Brenda Goss wait to receive their treasured senior rings from class secretary Jan Lanier.

To encourage sales of the 1970 Tomahawk, business staff manager Teresa Moore and assistant Jennie Mozeley place a sign in the front hall area.



After the senior breakfast, K. Summerlin scans pages of his annual.

Staff Sells Advertisements for 1970 Tomahawk

Members of the business staff Linda Page and Elaine Lyerley sort pictures to sell to students and faculty.

Advertisement played a vital role in the publication of the Tomahawk. Business staff members began fulfilling their responsibilities early in the summer with the selling of advertisements to local businesses. In addition to soliciting advertisements, staffers served as public relations agents and created interest in the activities of West.

To encourage sales of the annual, staff members placed posters in various areas of the school. They also sponsored an annual signing party at the end of the year.

Before continuing a yearbook display, Teresa King, Debbie Townsend, and Elaine Byrum pause to discuss the design.

Appalachian State University, M.A.
Principal

Addressing the student body, Mr. Wright shows his school spirit by portraying an Indian on Tacky Indian Day.

Leading students and faculty, administrators strived to make changes and set policies that would improve conditions for teachers and pupils. By approving a new dress code suggested by the Student Council, Mr. Wright allowed students to participate in the formation of a school policy. Mrs. Foster and Mr. Fitzsimmons supervised the publication of the newly established "Daily Bulletin."

Assisting students and faculty, Mrs. Boone, Mrs. Kretschmer, and Mrs. Keistler kept records and managed business aspects of school life. Mrs. McKeon and Mrs. McCausland worked efficiently to aid the guidance and library departments.

In addition to teaching, faculty members acted as advisers for organizations and chaperoned sports events and school socials.

Decorated for Valentine's Day by Mrs. Keistler, the office represents the center of all school activities.

Watching members of the newly-formed team compete in Johnson Gymnasium, Mrs. Foster observes the first swim meet.

As one of her duties, Mammie Smith efficiently washes trays, preparing them for the next shift of students.

Mrs. Virginia Scott, cafeteria manager, collects money from students and makes change during the rush lunch hour.

Janitors Cornelius Roach, Herman Miller, Tommy Lyerly, and William Elmore perform a vital service by maintaining sanitary conditions.

Mrs. Nettie Bell Johnson carries out one of her varied tasks as school maid.

in Performing Services Necessary to School Life

Under the supervision of Mr. Jimmy Stilwell, the maintenance staff worked continuously in order to care for the school. Although their job was difficult, the staff succeeded in keeping the buildings and surrounding grounds attractive.

Cafeteria staff members prepared nourishing meals for students and faculty to enjoy. Mrs. Virginia Scott, cafeteria manager, supervised the preparing of food and the planning of daily menus.

Mrs. Mary H. Fish, school nurse, gave assistance in treating minor injuries and illnesses during her weekly visits. By screening referred students for health problems and by offering helpful advice to students with problems, Mrs. Fish performed an essential service.

By keeping accurate student health records, school nurse, Mrs. Mary H. Fish, assists faculty and administration.

As part of his daily responsibilities, Mr. Stilwell, maintenance head, removes money from the coke machine.

Fashion Merchandising Joins Elective Courses

McClary, Martin, Futrelle, and Gillenwater construct unusual art designs by reversing the positive and negative.

Home Economics Department courses included fashion merchandising, foods and clothing, family living, and two years of home economics. Fashion merchandising, a new course, offered various facets of fashion buying, selling, and co-ordinating. As preparation for marriage and homemaking, seniors took family living. Catering to special interests, foods and clothing each composed a semester's work. Home Economics I and II provided opportunities for learning basic homemaking skills.

Stagecraft, drama, and art composed the fine arts element of electives curriculum. Stagecraft introduced technique of scenery, costuming, lighting, and stage management. Drama classes studied history of theater and fundamentals of acting. In Art I, students concentrated on basic principles; Art II stressed individuality and provided deeper study of fundamentals. Third-year students discussed theory in detail.

Family living students D. Berry and R. Summerville and guest K. Chavis prepare for an orphanage Christmas party.

Serving as health room attendant for a home economics project, Olivia McCauley examines Barbara Clark's throat.

Using a chart, fashion merchandising students Morrison, Latham, Prim, and Summey try to co-ordinate colors.

Wendell Elliott, Kathy Parr, Mark Tadlock, and Sandy Eidson rehearse for "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolfe?"

Eugene Fisher, Mike Meacham, and David Bass, stagecraft class members, move props onto the auditorium stage.

Leaving on a pre-Christmas field trip to the Merchandise Mart, home economics students board the activity bus.

Before the Christmas holidays the Home Economics Department entertains students and teachers at a festive tea.

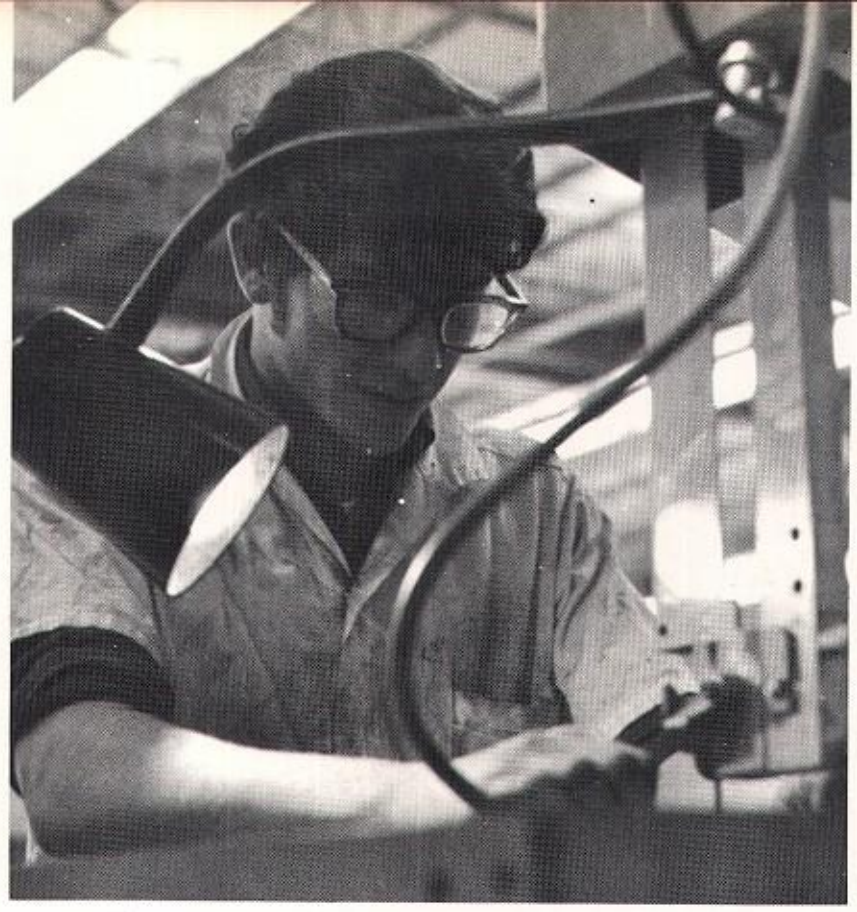
Vocational Electives Add



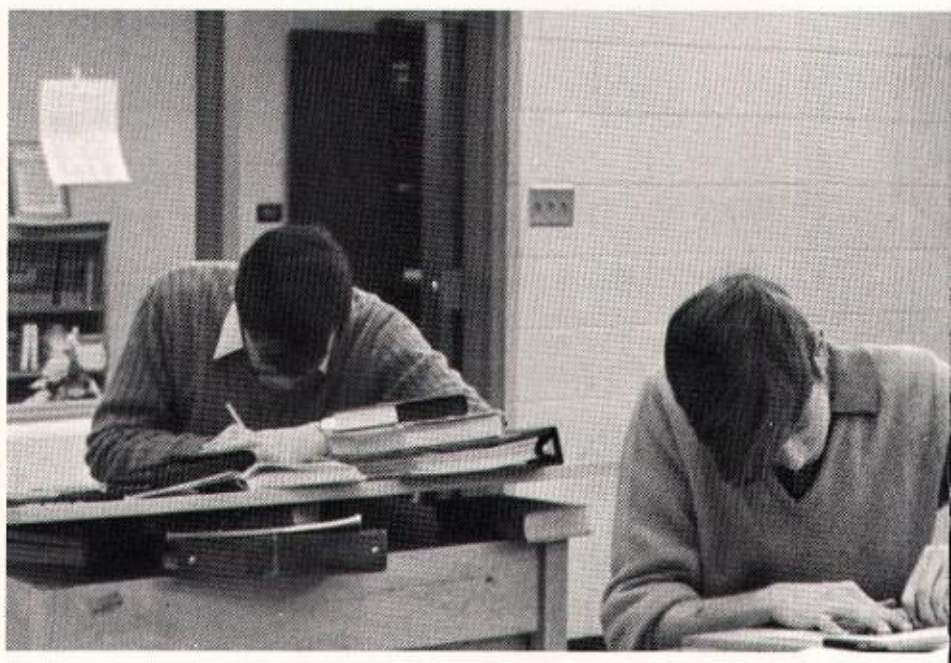
During his sixth-period machine shop class, Buddy Morgan concentrates on using a bandsaw while cutting metal.

In the auto body course, students learned to remove, replace, align, and straighten all parts of the automobile. Students taking electronics developed skills involving use of test equipment and tools while machine shop students spent three hours each day perfecting skills in the use of varied machinery.

Agriculture gave instruction in area of animal, plant, and soil sciences. Horticulture promoted understanding in plant sciences and skills in applied horticulture. In the greenhouse, students learned the growing, handling, and selling of trees, shrubs, flowers, and vegetable plants.

Drafting familiarized students with drafting and design practices and principles. They also worked in more complex areas such as graphical analysis of space problems. Introducing students to skills of industry, industrial arts gave them opportunities to use a variety of power and hand tools.

Industrial arts student Gary McCorkle takes advantage of class time to use a bandsaw in constructing a cabinet.



Bobby Kelly, Bobby Bailey, and Ronny Ware complete mechanical drawings in their sixth-period drafting class.

In an auto body and fender repair class, Dale Watkins, Terry Biggers, Gary Stikeleather, Johnny McQuay, and Bobby Whitlock sand and repair a Malibu Chevrolet.

New Horticulture Course

In his industrial arts class, Rick Summerville utilizes a shaper in building a cabinet as a class assignment.

C. Guy and S. Haynes test their green thumbs in planting tomatoes in their ornamental horticulture class.

Junior Gary May utilizes a lathe while cutting and shaping metal in his machine shop class during sixth period.

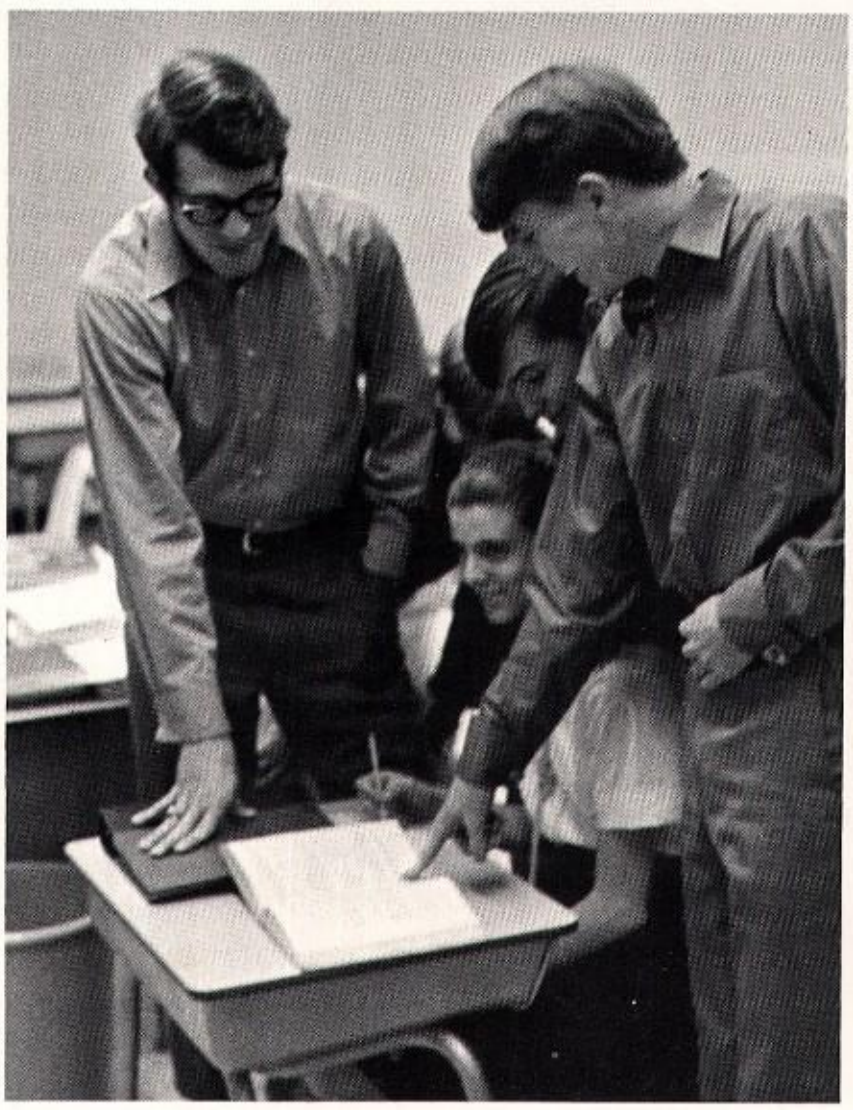
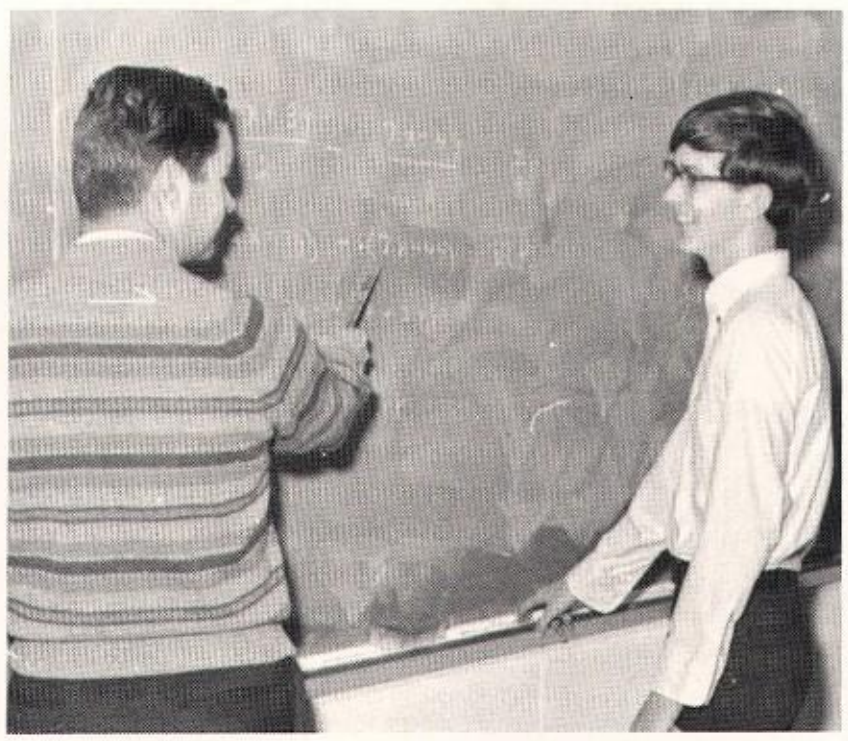
As classmates watch, Dixon Armstrong welds a sheet of metal in his fifth period Agriculture I class.

In business math class Mr. Patterson aids Debbie Watson in finding the solution to one of her homework problems.

As the only girl in the nine-member functions class, Emile Booker receives assistance from classmates.





As Algebra II instructor Mr. Cherry explains a problem, Billy Lockman learns that mathematics can be fun.

Classes Grow as More

Math courses included Algebra I and II, business math, geometry, analysis, and functions.

Algebra I introduced sets, equations, axioms, open sentences, and factoring. Algebra II continued Algebra I and added conics and logarithms.

Through a wide use of the four fundamental processes of mathematics, business math proved to be a very practical course with studies in income tax, insurance, banking, stocks and bonds, and business transactions.

In geometry, undefined terms, definitions, postulates, and theorems aided in developing the utilization of formal and indirect proofs.

Analysis included fundamental material while introducing functions. Functions covered conic sections, limits, work, force, and the rectangular-co-ordinate system.

During a lecture to his geometry class, Mr. Boone explains the application of a new theorem in solving problems.

Geometry student Dominique Vercaemert uses a protractor.

Business math students Cindy Fentress, Angeline Shannon, Janice Thomas, Cindy Cauble, and Yvonne Honeycutt use class time to advantage by studying their tests.

Students Develop Interest in Higher Mathematics

Analysis teacher Mr. Schrum watches with interest as Jay Klein tackles the factoring of a third-degree equation.

Miss Forney willingly offers special help to Algebra II student Melody Owen as she works a difficult problem.

During her Algebra I class, Carol Kyaw places a problem from the previous night's assignment on the board.

Suffering Through Smells, Minor Accidents, Lab

In preparation for blood-typing in Biology I, Butch Witherspoon observes, as Tony Prince pricks his finger.

Realtionships between plants, animals, and their environments composed a major portion of study in biology. Physiology and anatomy of living things helped students to comprehend these relationships.

Chemistry I included laboratory work to acquire knowledge regarding composition, structure, and properties of matter; changes that matter undergoes; and energy released or absorbed during these changes. Helping to achieve better comprehension, Chemistry II reinforced first-year knowledge and encouraged independent study and more laboratory work.

Physics students developed an understanding of theories about various types of energy: heat, sound, light, mechanical, and nuclear.

Utilizing natural and biological laws, physical science included study of man and the manner in which he fits into his world and universe.

Tacky Indian Jerel Reavis uses his shovel in clearing obstructive roots from the Biology II nature trail.

Reports, Amateur Scientists Explore Their World

Physics student Jimmy Burgin clocks the amount of time required for a specific weight to complete a full swing.

As Billy Joy checks the water level, chemistry classmate Clint Wright secures a clamp on the rubber tubing.

Employing a scalpel, senior Bernard Toole undertakes the dissection of a pig during his Biology II class.

New Advanced English Opens Doors to Seniors

English IV students participate in a mock General Electric College Bowl game with Lynda McMichael acting as moderator.

Sophomore English introduced students to world literature. They also studied fundamental writing techniques, grammar, vocabulary, and mythology. English III students enjoyed the different facets of American literature from the colonial to the contemporary. In addition to literature the course included vocabulary, language, and composition studies. Critical and satirical statements on society were important aspects of English IV. Students covered vocabulary, language, and composition in depth.

Sophomore and junior S.A.T. classes utilized enrichment materials and field trips in related areas. Sophomores went deeper into mythology and interpretative reading while juniors studied theme-writing and great works such as Macbeth. Seniors who were able to pursue English at the college level took the new Advanced Placement course. It included an in-depth study of literature with emphasis on interpretation.

Browsing through paperback books, sophomores P. Alwran, D. Seagle, and J. Watkins enjoy a visit to the book fair.

English III student Amy Reames listens attentively as Miss Divine explains one of the works of Edgar Allan Poe.

Taking advantage of a spring day, M. Kivel, student teacher, introduces students to Whitman's Leaves of Grass.

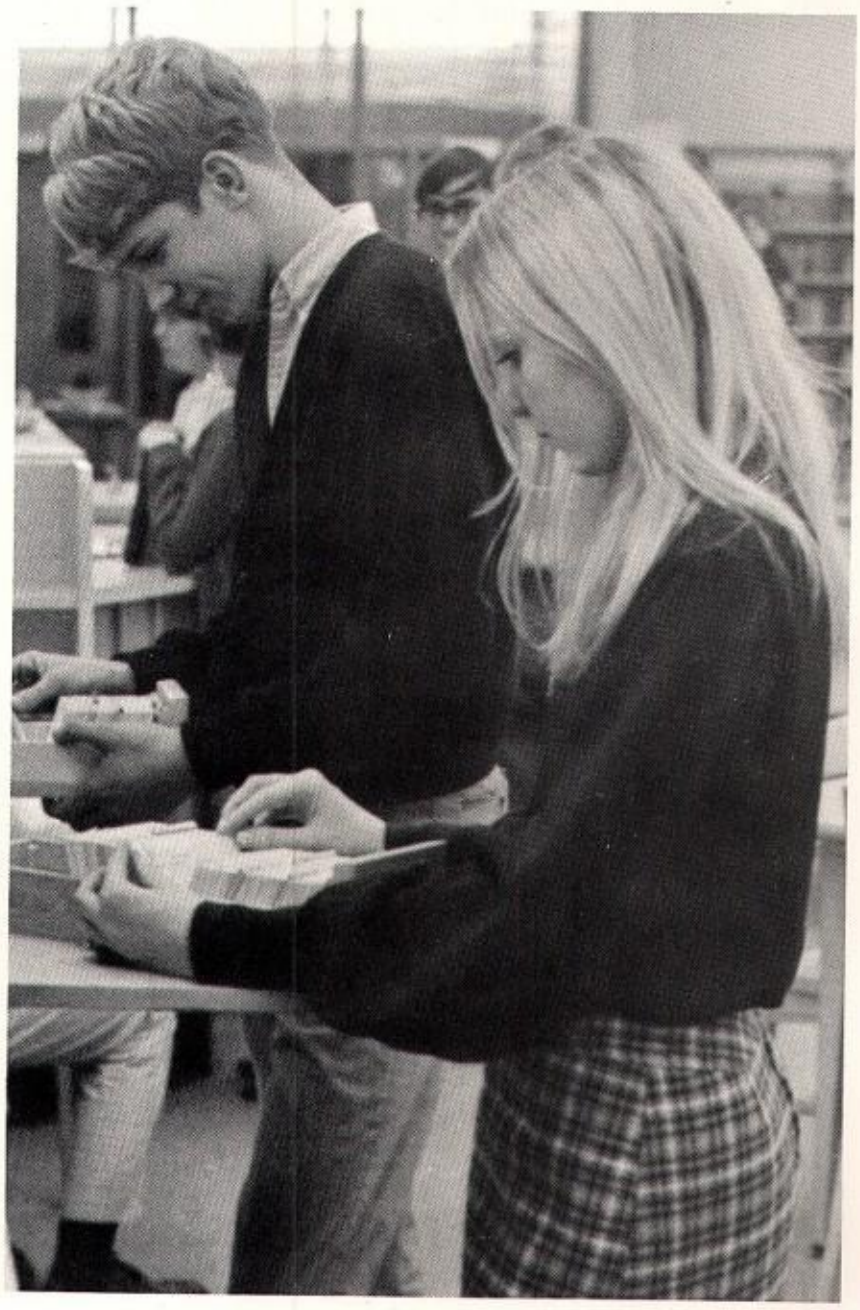
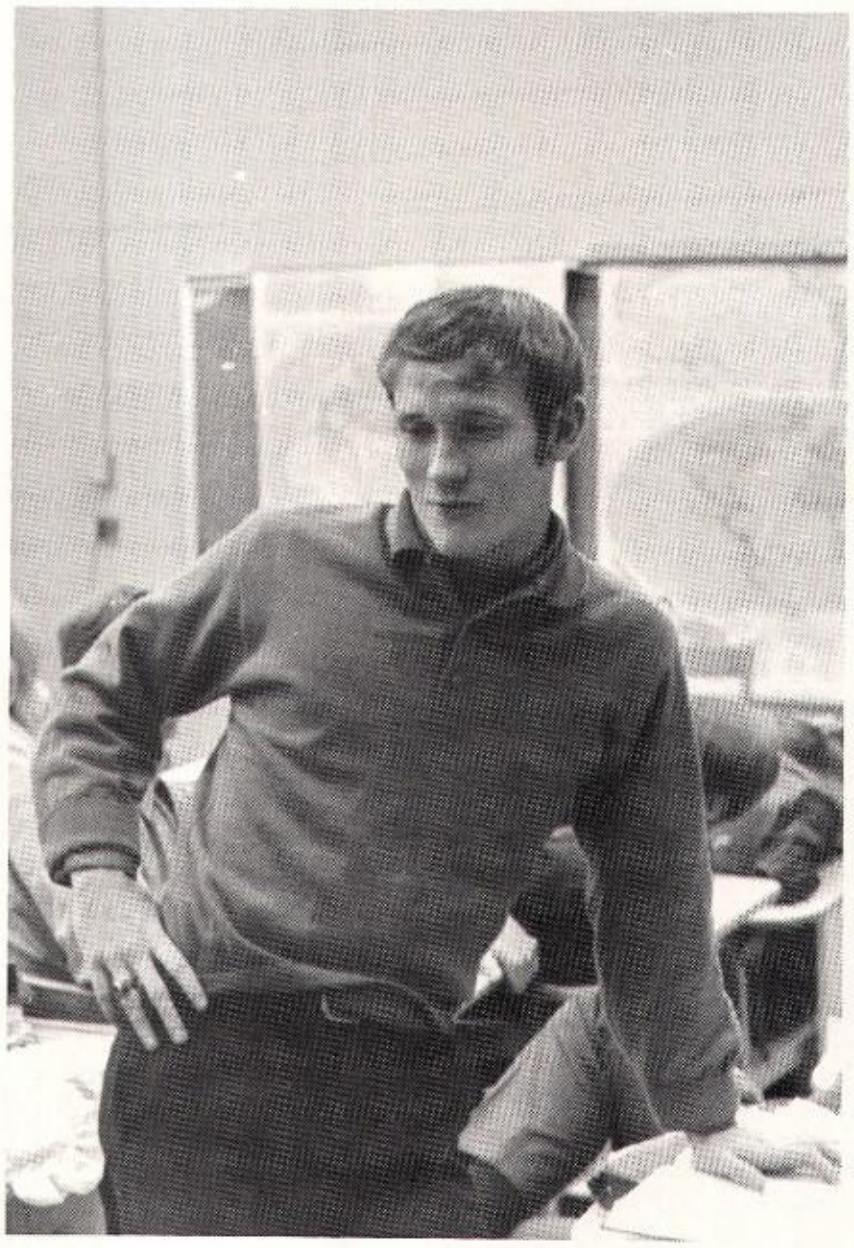
Serving as the Host from Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, Penni McCall employs visual aids during her narration.

Juniors Teresa Hatchell, June Brotherton, and Teresa Baker present a climatic scene from The Great Gatsby.

Hunting novels to use for book reports, Steve Saunders and Angie Campbell take advantage of the card catalog.

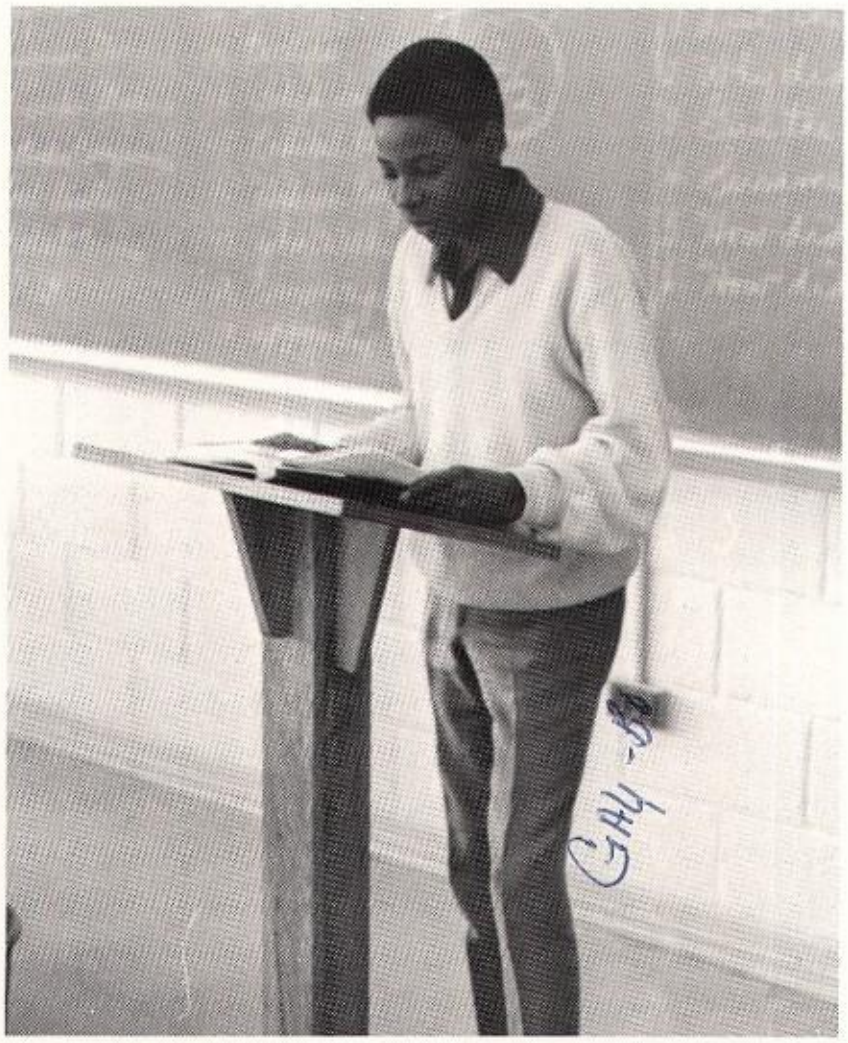


Updated Social Studies Curriculum Now Includes



In a mock United Nations meeting, sociology student Walter Abernethy expresses his views on Red China's entrance.

United States history teacher Mr. Webb stresses a point concerning the movement to abolish Southern slavery.



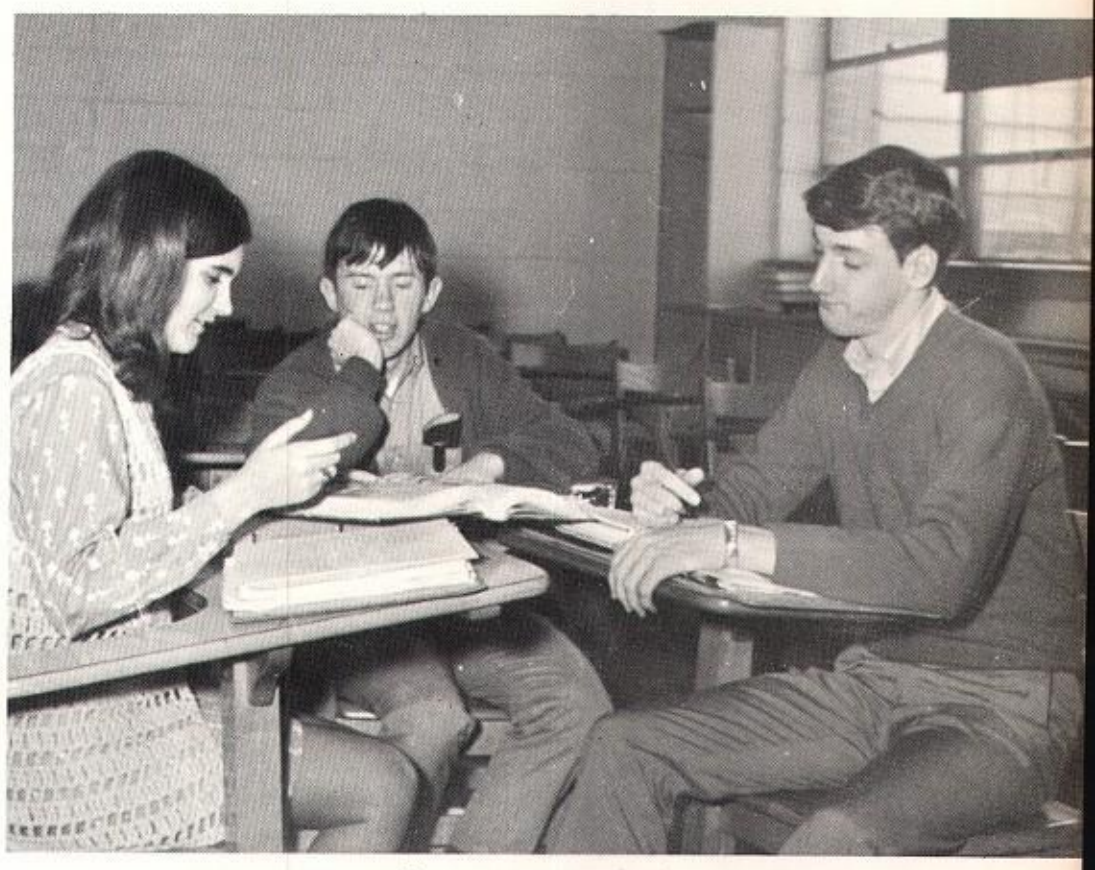
Opening the floor to discussion, Gary Davis speaks on a contemporary problem to his Afro-American class.

Ronny Hughes and Rick Pearson examine coal miner's lungs, as psychology guest Mr. Lippard lectures on smoking.

Four Additional Courses

Four additional courses–economics, Afro-American culture, a Special Abilities and Talents social science seminar, and sociology–joined the Social Studies Department curriculum. Offered intermittenly in past years, the one-semester courses of economics and sociology resumed after a brief lapse. Basically, both courses aided students in understanding modern problems of society. Afro-American culture surveyed attempts of Afro-Americans, from slavery to present, to understand the nature of their position in American society and the nature of that society itself. Providing a chance for individual and group study, the social science seminar class discussed modern problems, including war in Viet Nam, drugs, and poverty.

World history explored the time from ancient civilizations to the present. Through scripture reading, Bible students also discovered insight into ancient times. The American story from colonial to modern times comprised the United States history course. A field trip to Broughton Hospital aided psychology classes in studying the behavior of living organisms, especially man. Resource laboratory offered small groups a better chance to learn through prescriptive teaching.

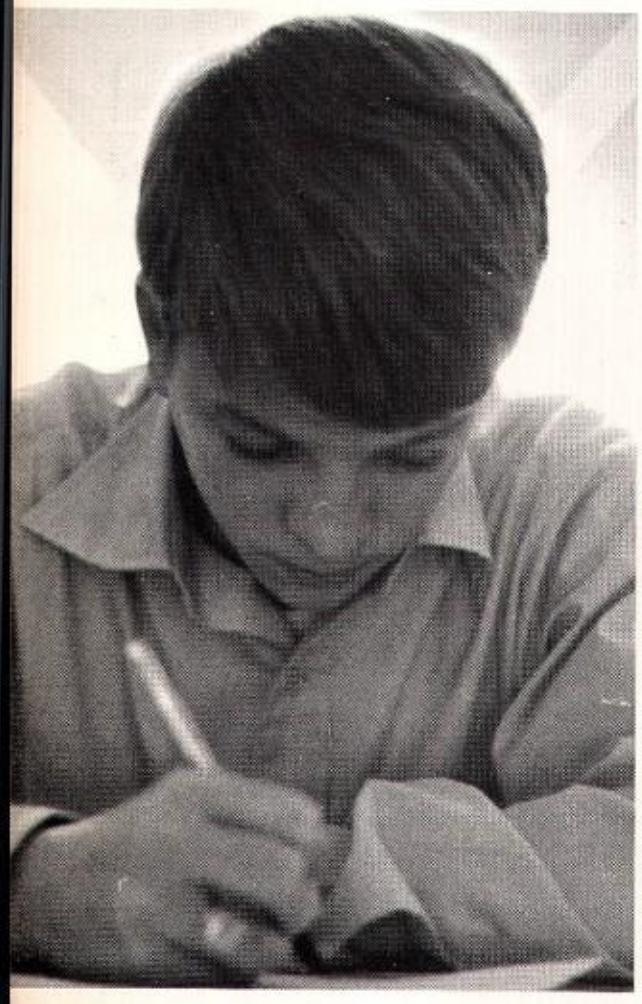


Jeanie Latham, Clark Killough, and Joel Potts discuss plans for an upcoming social science seminar presentation.

Mrs. Hall aids Ruby Pettis during a session of the resource laboratory class, held in the new mobile unit.

Seniors Chris Glines and Janet Powell display a model of an ancient theater to their world history class.

Referring to their Bibles, students interpret verses of scripture and discover historical and religious facts.



Ricky Plummer concentrates on a driver education test.

Parallel parking being an integral part of the driver education course, each sophomore practices maneuvering his vehicle into the space allotted between two markers.

Tackling Driving Problems, Indians Enjoy Comfort, Safety of New Cars

Sophomores took time from their study halls or their physical education classes to take the driver education course. This program consisted of thirty hours of classroom study and eighteen hours of in-the-car instruction. Of these eighteen hours, behind-the-wheel training required six and observation, twelve. Car dealers in this area donated the four cars – two 1970 Chevrolets, a 1969 Ford, and a 1970 Buick – which were used in this program. By taking this course, students gained knowledge of safe driving rules and experience in driving.

Joanne Latour and Cindy Farlowe watch while Mr. Clouse administers a reaction time test to Susan Griffin.

After adjusting her seat belt, sophomore Betty Weir starts the car in preparation for a daily driving lesson.

Gym Classes Aid in Promoting Physical Fitness

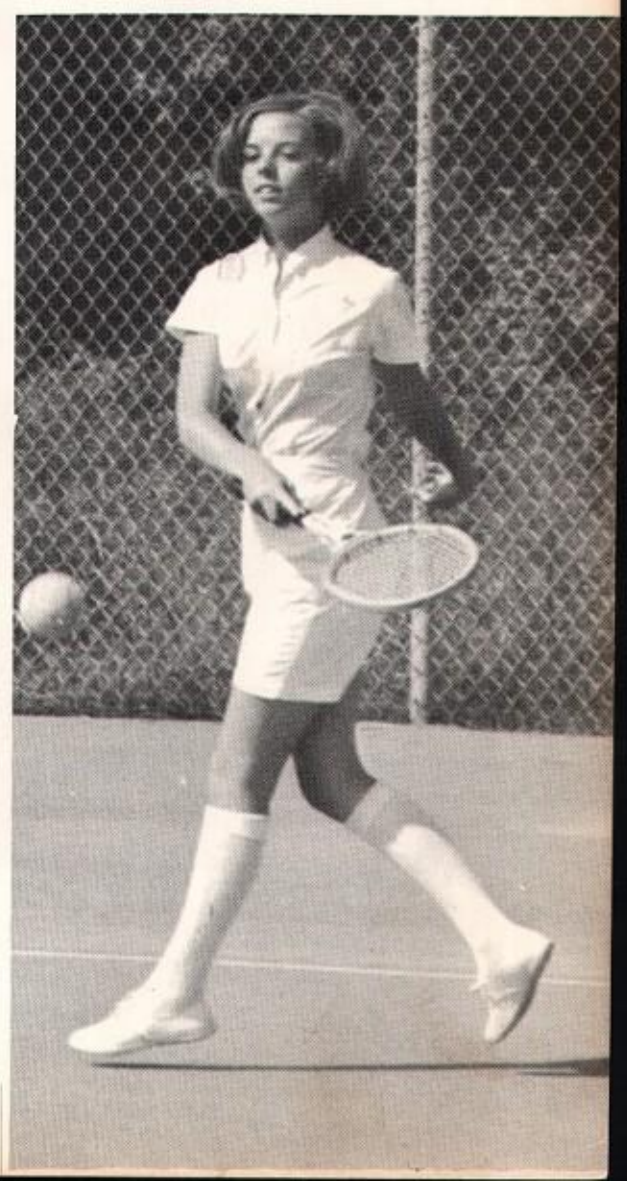
Serving as referee, gym assistant Richard Blanks observes as Matthew Boone rushes forward to meet the kickball.

Although juniors and seniors served as gym assistants, physical education classes were basically sophomore-oriented. The girls' fall and winter program included field hockey, basketball, tumbling, volleyball, and floor exercise. Tennis, badminton, softball, track, and table tennis composed the spring program. Playing basketball, crab-soccer, football, and volleyball was part of the boys' fall and winter program. Golf, softball, track, and tennis formed the boys' spring program. These well-rounded activities developed desirable skills and traits as well as physical fitness. Without actually realizing it, the students gained wholesome interests. They also developed good attitudes and a deep appreciation for the values of good sportsmanship.

As referee D. Aderholt and a classmate watch, M. Thomason and C. Graham attempt to tap the ball to teammates.

Sophomores Michele Wylie, Cynthia Gilbert practice a flying angel balance during a tumbling and acrobatics session in their physical education class.

During a tennis match Joyce Crocker returns a serve.



French V Joins Foreign Language Curriculum

French I introduced students to pronunciation, conversation, and grammar. By studying culture and civilization, second year students increased their knowledge of the language. Newspaper articles, literary selections, cartoons, and other writings composed French III. French IV and the new French V class studied culture and civilization.

Through reading selections of ancient and modern literature, Latin I students learned vocabulary and grammar. Latin II provided deeper studies of these subjects with such supplementary readings as Caesar's Gallic Wars.

Through conversation, Spanish I students learned grammar and vocabulary. An intermediate study of dialogue composed Spanish II. Spanish literature and arts studies began in Spanish III. Fourth year students concerned themselves with literary characters while Spanish V consisted of twentieth century literary studies.

M. Hunt and P. Hutchinson exhibit collages done in French II to represent their true feelings on the subject.

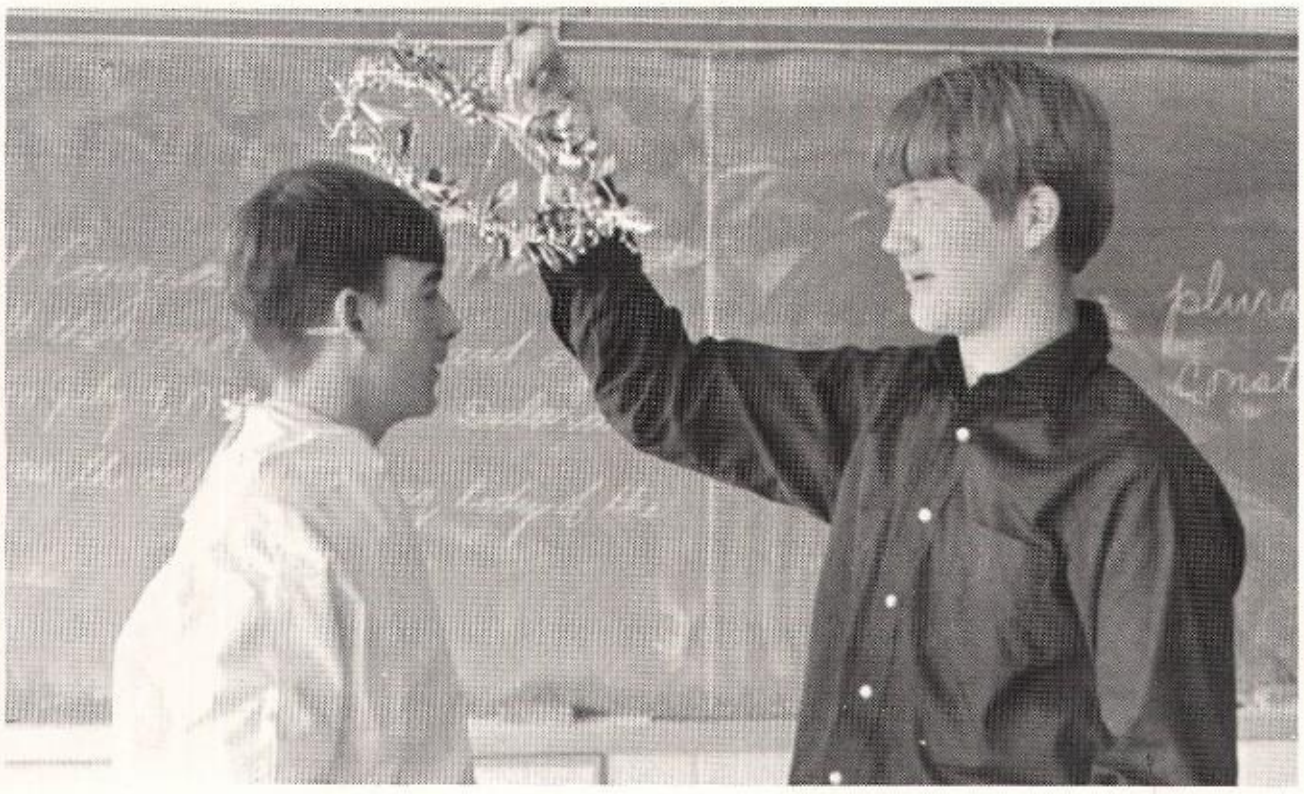
During a fifth period Latin I celebration before the Christmas holidays, Bill Cline crowns Tim Loftin, who is dressed in his Roman toga, with a special gift.



As the Spanish IV and V classes eat lunch together in the cafeteria, Miss Phillips casts a doubtful look at Susan Benjamin, who is concentrating on her speech.

Sherry Hartis teaches Lynn Barr a dance in Spanish I.

Translating from the book, Miss Divine explains a passage to Debbie Sisk and Nancy Williams in a Latin II class.

Members of the "Bonne Idée" Society–C. Welfare, P. Underwood, S. Cathey, P. Sigmon–work in the French V books.

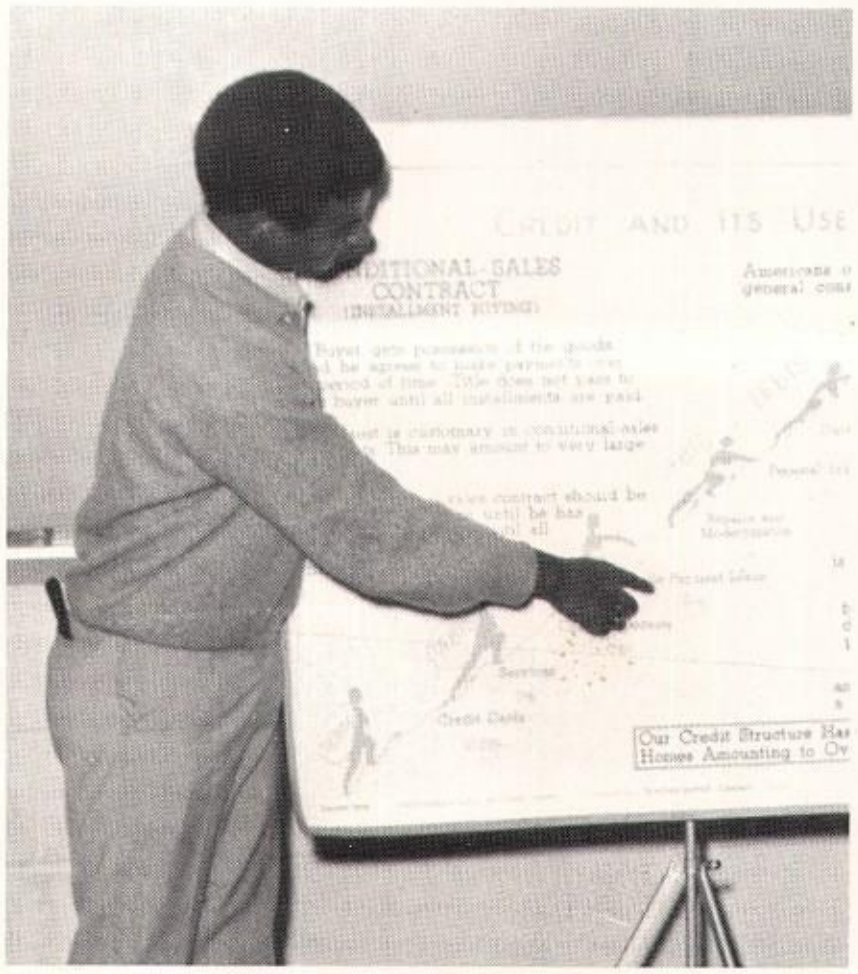
Exchange student from Chile Kennie Gajardo plays a game of Scrabble with junior Dominique Vercaemert in French IV.

Greg Overbeck, Shirley Humphries, Debbie Huie complete a laboratory exercise in their sixth-period French II class.

Area Businesses Employ

Industrial co-operative training student Jean Fezette washes the hair of a Betty's Beauty and Wig Salon customer.

Occupational economics student Robert Davis uses a chart to illustrate various available credit sources.

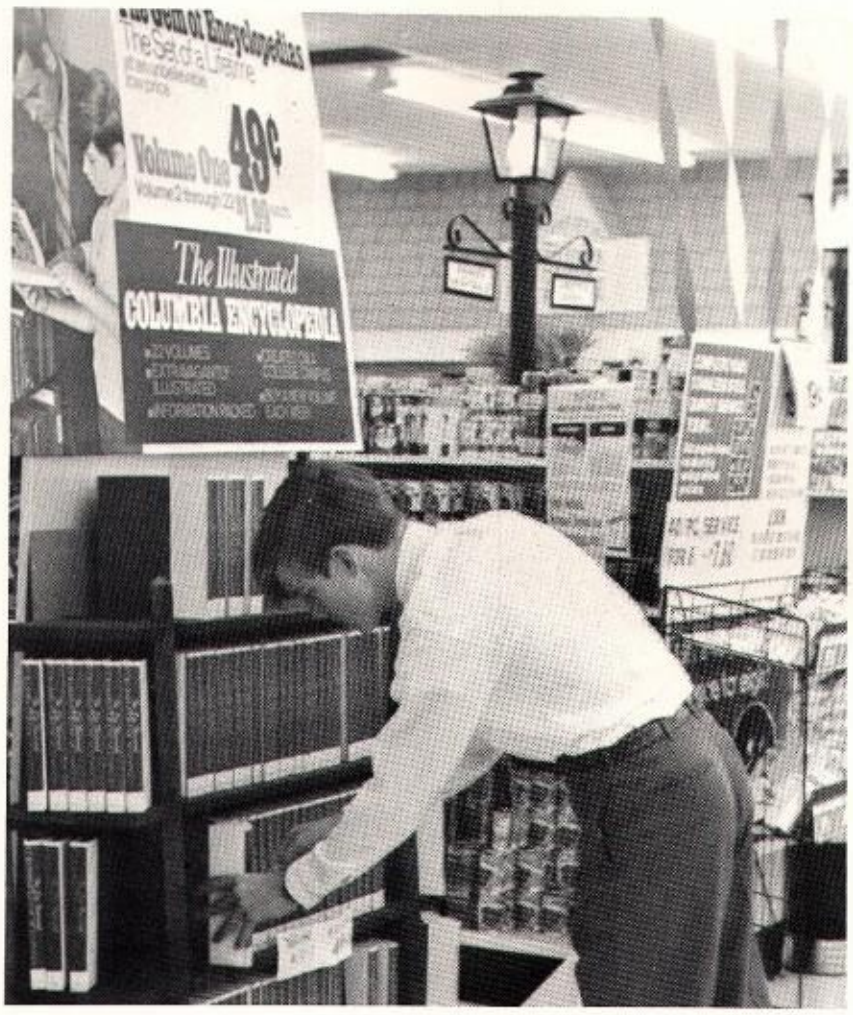


Employed by a paint store, distributive education student Leon Hudson receives instruction from Mr. Joe Crowell.

Working at Tucker's Automotive Service, I.C.T. student Donnie Preslar gains experience in repairing motors.

Under the supervision of Mr. James Miller, I.C.T. student Joe Knight welds for the Crescent Steel Company.

over One Hundred Students from Work Programs



Employed by a local Harris-Teeter Supermarket, D. E. student Dale Luckey straightens an encyclopedia display.

C.O.O. student Robin Bartlett works on records in the Installment Loan Department at First Union National Bank.

Through the vocational program, students gained valuable experience which aided them in maintaining jobs. Four subjects—occupational economics, distributive education, cooperative office occupations, and industrial cooperative training—composed the vocational program.

Taking the occupational economics course enabled students to understand and practice basic principles of economics and to plan for careers which they hoped to pursue. D.E. offered students a look at wholesaling, retailing, and business services; such as advertising, selling, banking, and insurance. C.O.O. gave seniors opportunities to gain valuable work experience in business, while still in high school. Through the I.C.T. program, students learned skills under actual working conditions, supervised by skilled tradesmen.

Distributive education student Claire Simmons aids a customer in making a selection from merchandise at The Collins Company, located in the Freedom Village Shopping Center.

Business Courses Include Subjects Which Assist

Marshall Collins feeds cards into reader for processing.

Busily taking dictation from Miss McArver, Kathy Eudy, Diann Smith, Vicki Greene, and Susan Long practice developing speed for future business opportunities.

During her general office practice class, Gail Stephens concentrates on learning to use the Monroe calculator.

In trying to solve a problem, Tommy Sanders and James Tucker find it necessary to refer to their bookkeeping texts.

Juniors Robert Johnson and Sheila McNabb put up a bulletin board on different types of office machines.

As Rita Harrison punches cards on the keypunch machine, June Middleton places her program card on the cylinder.

in Preparation of Indians for Future Employment

Bookkeeping student Joie Curry attempts to figure out a proposed account while utilizing an adding machine.

Students taking business courses developed an understanding of clerical jobs and business traits. Subjects offered in the Commercial Department included typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, general office practice, and data processing.

Typing I aided in preparing students for vocational or personal use of the typewriter. Students explored vocational typing more extensively in Typing II.

Two years of shorthand aided students in learning to take dictation. Practice sets provided practical experience in Bookkeeping I and II.

Data processing trained students in the operation of keypunch machines and computers. Gaining a better knowledge of business and improving clerical skills were main objectives of general office practice.

After compiling her program, Brenda Mullis diligently employs the console typewriter in programming the computer.

Putting skills learned in the office machines course to practical use, Linda Payne types a business letter.

While endeavoring to develop speed and accuracy, Typing I students practice using the correct fingering.

All Representatives Gain From Election, Rallies

Delegates represented West to various assemblies and youth conferences during the summer of 1969.

While delegates to Girls' State met at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, Boys' State representatives gathered at Wake Forest University. The purpose of these two conferences was to help students get a clearer understanding of the various branches of state government. The Wild Acres Youth Conference assembled at Hendersonville, where the delegates gained a better understanding of human relations.

Indians Elate as 'Rebels

Homecoming week was perhaps the most exciting week during the year. The Homecoming dance was held on October 9, 1969. The theme was the "Rebels Second Defeat" with music presented by the Tempests. Students, the following day, dressed in their tackiest garb ready to kick-off Tacky Indian Day. A contest was held for choosing the tackiest boy and girl from each class. That night the Indians went on the warpath against North. With mounting excitement, half-time entertainment included introduction of sponsors and court and the coronation of the new queen. The game ended with the victory, indeed, the Rebel's Second Defeat.

To honor Mr. Wright on Tacky Indian Day, Steve Helton presents a portrait as a gift from the Senior Class.

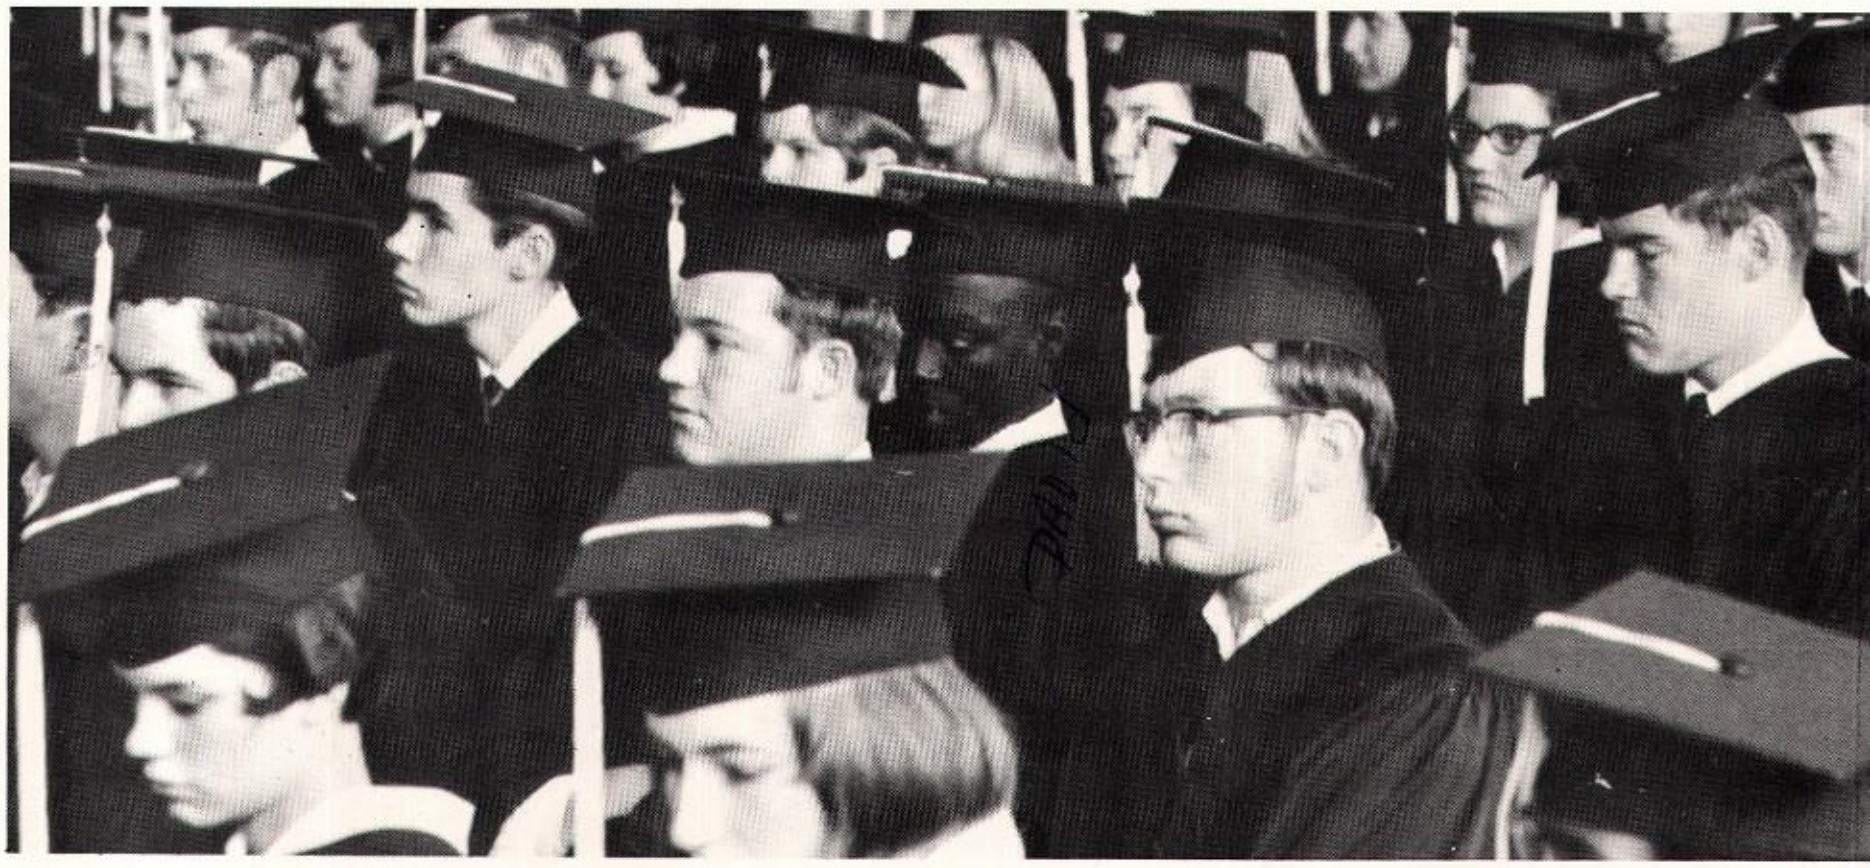
Sadness, Happiness, 'Visions of Tomorrow' Reveal



Approaching the end of their high school years, seniors reveal emotions as "Visions of Tomorrow," the Senior Class poem for 1969, is read to the student body at the annual Senior Awards Day ceremonies in the gym.

Excitement grips the seniors as they realize their memorable twelve years of schooling are drawing to a close.

For the seniors the most important activities were Senior Awards Day, the baccalaureate service, and graduation. As seniors marched into the gym in cap and gown, they held their heads proudly, for they had attained one of their highest goals. Escorting them were twenty-one Junior Marshals selected for their scholastic ability. These marshals also accompanied the seniors to the baccalaureate service held in the Charlotte Coliseum. The height of the graduation activities was the commencement exercises held on June 4, 1969, in Ovens Auditorium. There the seniors listened to a message from Doctor Amos Abrams and later received their diplomas.

Indians Continue Winning Streak Over Olympic

Adding two more victories to their winning streak over Olympic, Indian basketballers romped past the Trojans 84 to 74 and 90 to 76. In the first of these games, Harold Cherry poured in 32 points and Londell McClary scored 19 points. Cherry scored 27 points while Bobby Helms contributed 18 points in their second meeting with the Trojans.

By defeating the Catholic Cougars 53 to 51, the Indians won their first game of the season. Possibly the most satisfying win came when Helms and McClary made clutch shots in the final minute of play to edge Harding 60 to 59. Hunter Huss became the Indians' victim as West won 65 to 56. Cherry scored 25 points and Helms added 16 points. Despite the Indians' disappointing season, forward Harold Cherry ended up as one of the top scorers in the country.

Senior guard Londell McClary drives toward the basket against Catholic in the first game of the season.

Senior guard Mark McDaniels drives through for a beautiful layup as three Catholic Cougars look on.

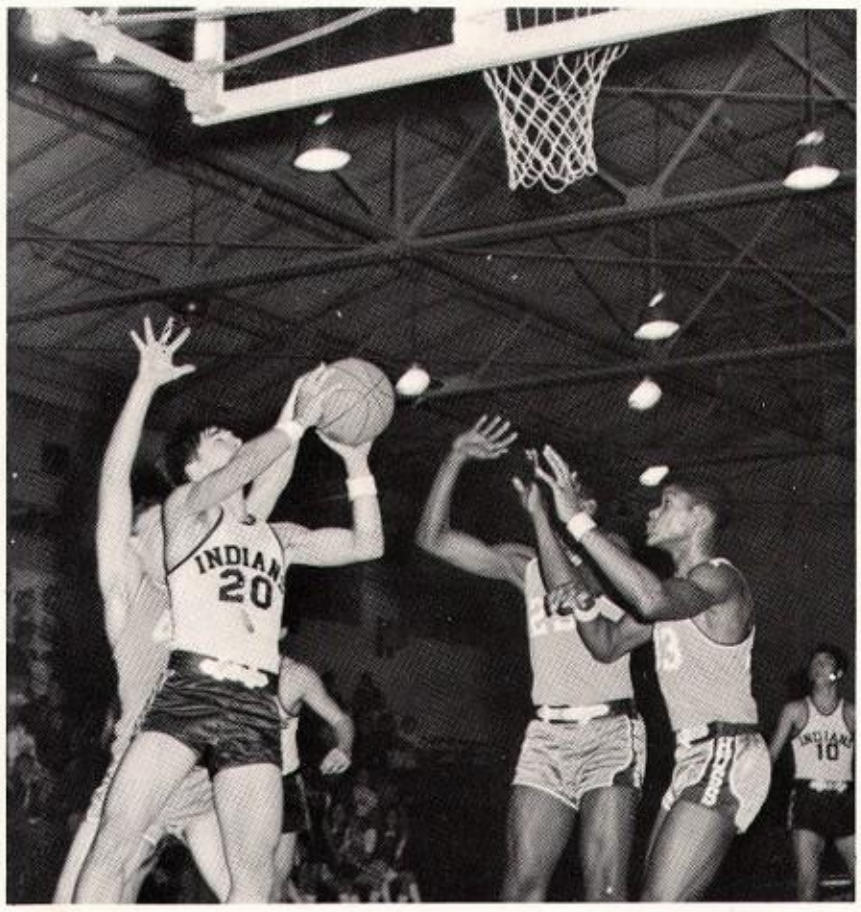
Rusty Meachum fires a long pass up court to start an Indian fast break against the pressing defense of North.

Junior varsity roundballers managed to win three games in a schedule of nineteen. By a score of 67 to 59, the Indians beat Hunter Huss for their first victory. Defeating Hickory 53 to 31 was the second consecutive win. Then in a tough game with Olympic, West won 64 to 63. Butch Witherspoon and George Stone led the team in scoring. In the first game of the tournament, the Indians lost to North 64 to 51.

Sophomore guard Butch Witherspoon attempts to shoot as he is surrounded by a trio of Hunter Huss players.



Blair Places First for Tribe at Winston-Salem

Setting a new record for the school, West grapplers finished with a record of twelve wins and one loss. They also set a school record by shutting out Hickory with a score of 50-0. Olympic, that finished first in the conference, dealt West its only loss.

Dixon Armstrong and co-captains Jimmy Blair and Harry Hilewitz scored first place wins in the district meet. Junior James Zeigler finished as a runner-up, while the team came in third. In the state meet Blair won first place in the 115-pound competition, while Hilewitz came in fourth in the heavyweight division. Scoring eighteen points, Indian wrestlers finished seventh in the state competition.

Indian Netters opened the season with three straight losses. The Indians lost to Independence 7-2, Myers Park 9-0, and South 9-0. Then the Indians won the next match against Olympic 5-4. West lost its next six matches before taking a 6-3 victory at Hunter Huss. In the last match of the season, the Tribesmen lost on their home court to West Charlotte 5-4.

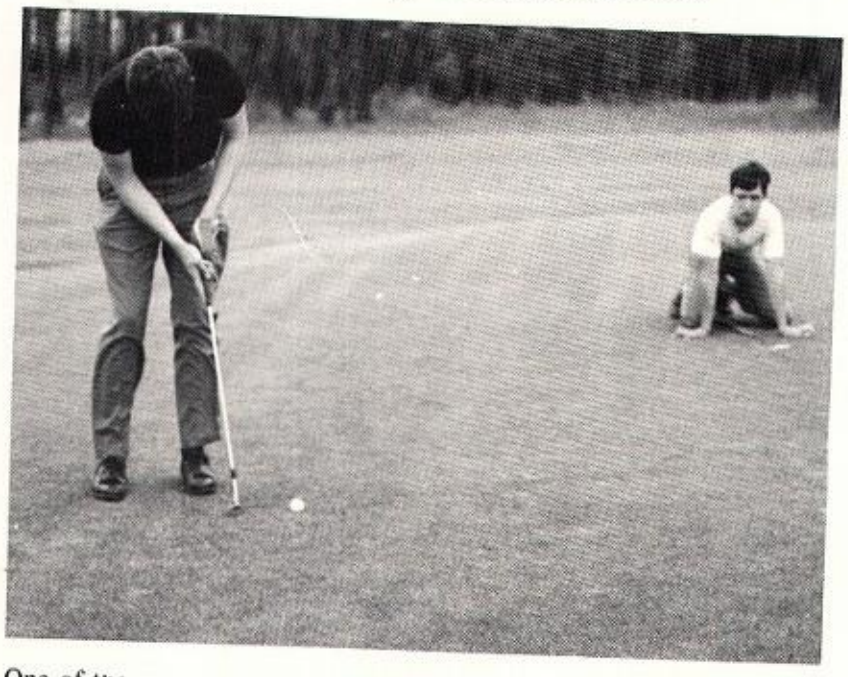
Although the Indians finished with a disappointing 2-10 season, they gained valuable experience in competition and in well-played matches with other schools. Seniors Phil Schroeder and Wilson Davis led the team.

Junior netter Ernie Black returns a serve as the Indians take on the West Charlotte Lions in a home match.

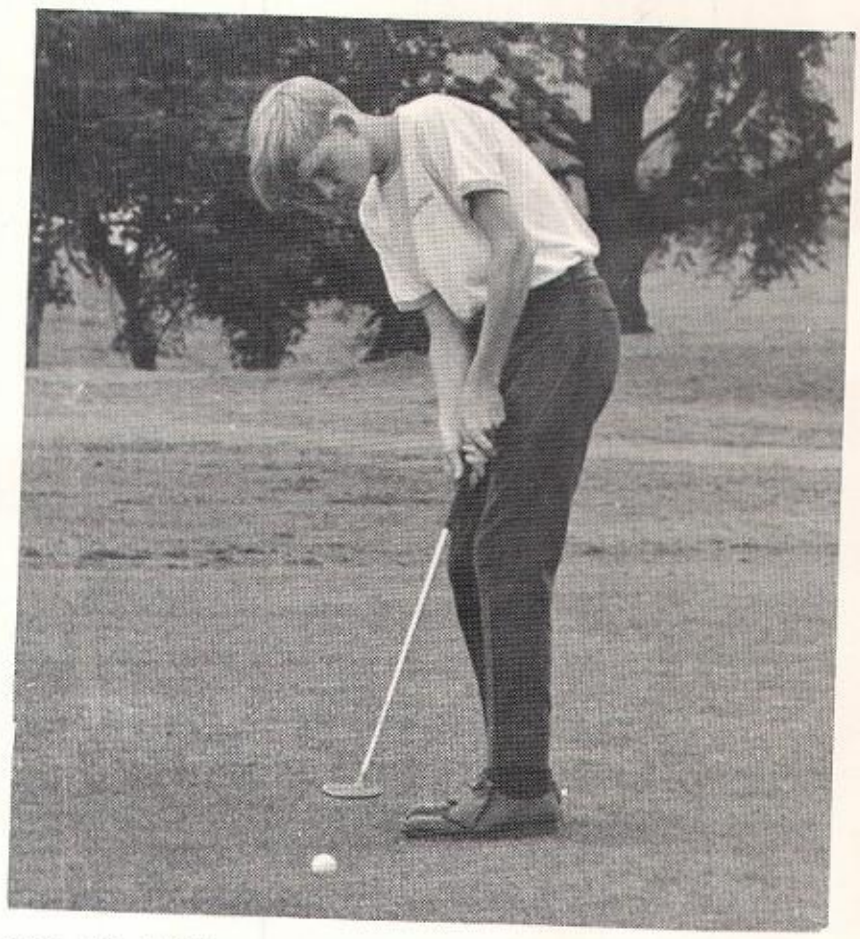
Senior Wilson Davis, a seasoned three year veteran, practices his forearm for an important upcoming match.

Golfers Gain Skill Through Practice, Matches

Glenn Kiser, using a good swing which was acquired through much practice, chips the ball on to the green for a better position.



One of the many sophomores on the golf team, Woody Williams tries to sink a long putt on a difficult green.



Junior Clint Wright, exhibiting a skillful putting stroke, tries to sink a putt at Sunset Hills Golf Course.

In the District Seven tournament, which was held at Cedarwood Golf Course, the Indian golfers finished fourth out of eight teams.

In a single match against Harding at Sunset Hills Golf Course, West's home course, sophomore Larry Wilson shot a 75 in the number one match as West took the victory over the Rams.

Seniors Reggie King and Rusty Lee led the golf team, while sophomores Larry Wilson and Larry Yount showed great ability.

Tracksters Gain Eleventh Place in State Meet

Forty Indians participated in twelve meets for a successful season and finished eleventh in the state meet in Raleigh. Trackmen set four new school records.

Peck Byrum set the pole vault record with a vault of 13' 1 3/4": David McGee set the shot put record with a toss of 53' 2": and David Helms, one of the sophomores who showed great ability, did a broad jump of 21' 2 1/4" for a school record. The two mile relay team – Johnny Leatherman, Lenny Bullock, Mike James, and Steve Moore – set a new record of 8 minutes 28.3 seconds.

Other outstanding tracksters were Marian Hayes, Carl Roach, Jim Paxton, and Ronnie Ridout.

Junior Lenny Bullock passes the baton to senior Steve Moore as the Indian runners compete in the two mile relay.

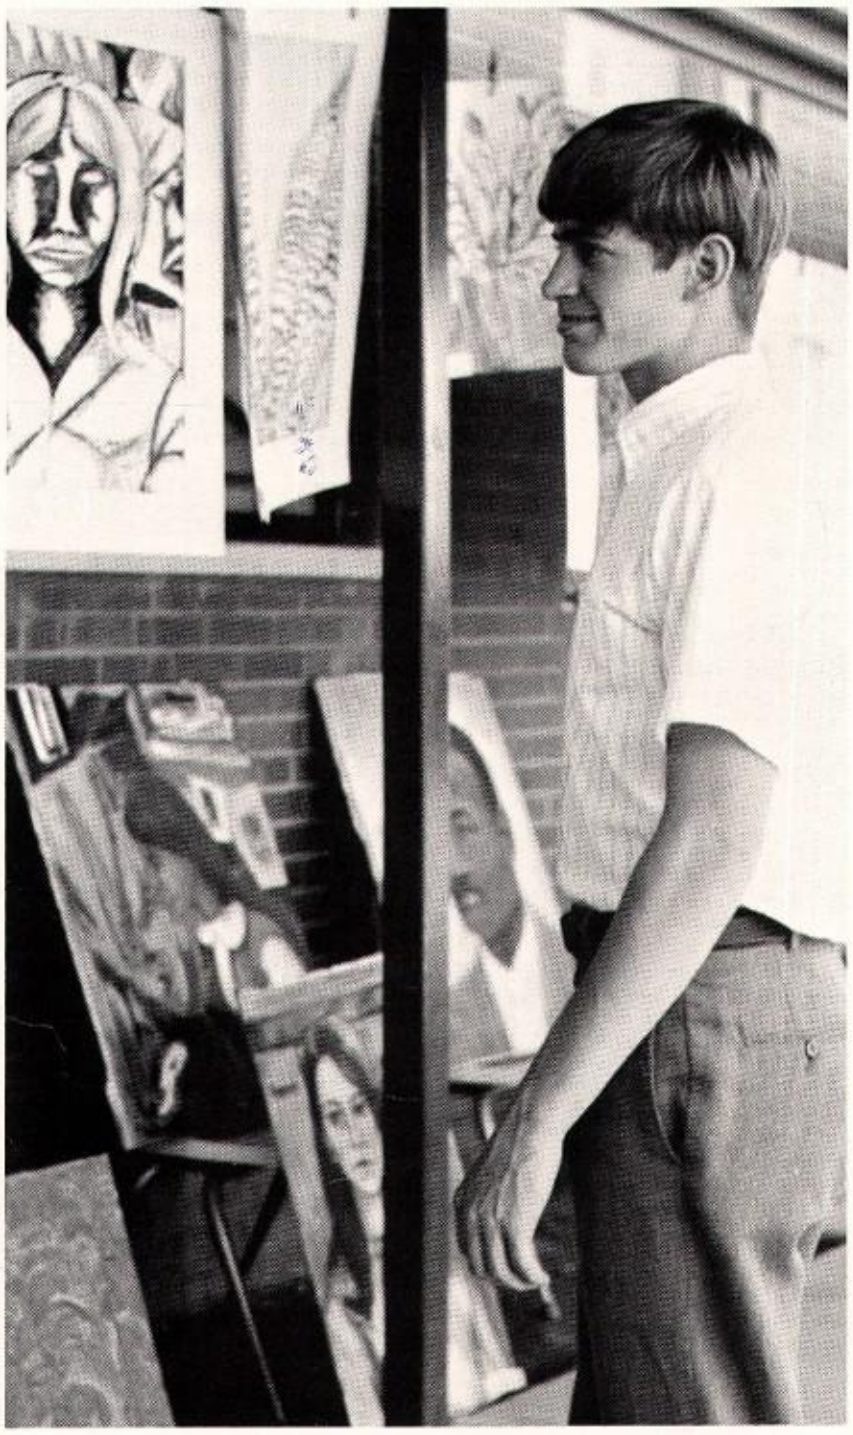
Art Club Prints Christmas Paper, Wraps Gifts

Students with a keen interest in the world of art met twice a month. Under the direction of Mrs. Matson, a new adviser, clubbers sought to extend their knowledge and to increase their appreciation of art.

As its first project the Art Club used its originality and talent in designing, producing, and selling Christmas gift wrapping paper. Later in the year guests from businesses spoke to the club about the opportunities and enjoyment found in commercial art. Clubbers contributed to the attractiveness of the cafeteria as they dressed the walls with art work. In the spring the club held the annual art show and sale.

V. Helms, S. Hudson and B. Plexico work industriously to print attractive Christmas wrapping paper for selling.



During the Art Club's sidewalk sale in the spring, J. Blackwelder gives certain paintings an interested look.

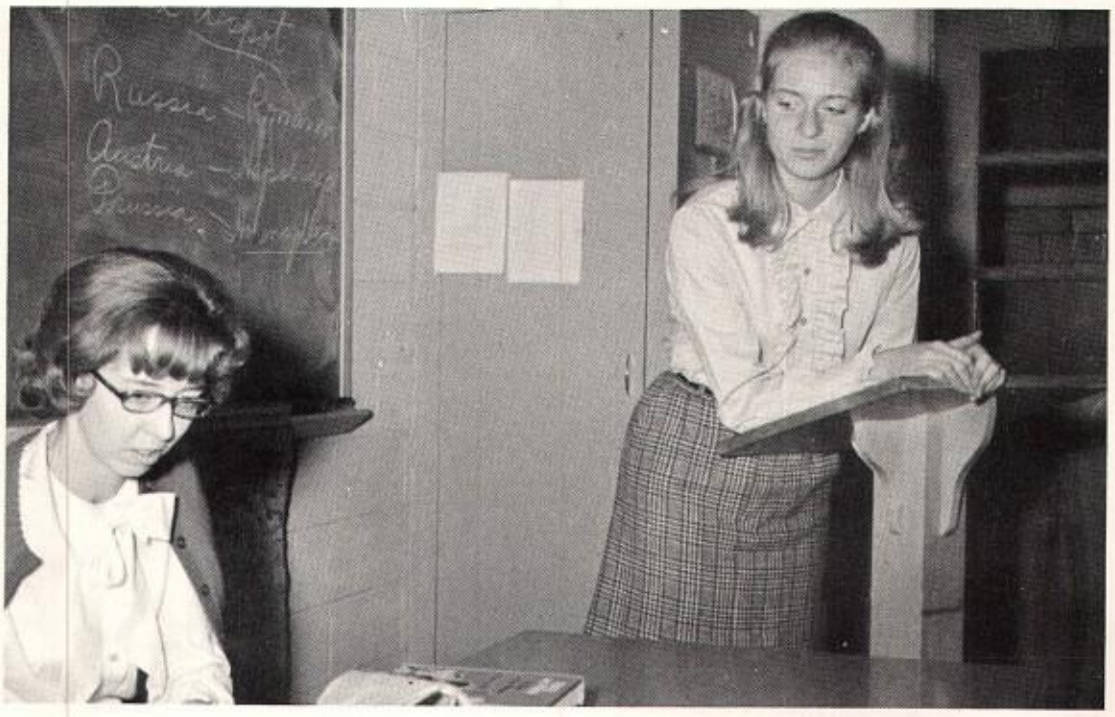
Club Amuses Children in Hospital at Halloween

Bible Club members masqueraded as Halloween goblins to amuse the patients in the children's ward at Memorial Hospital. At their November meeting they addressed Christmas cards to the soldiers in Viet Nam. Along with the Chaplain Council, they sponsored the homeroom food drive preceding the holidays. Before their Christmas party, club members went caroling to homes in the community. During the second semester they presented devotions at the PTA meetings. They also attended services at the Jewish Temple Israel. Membership was open to anyone interested in putting Christian principles into effect at school and in the community.

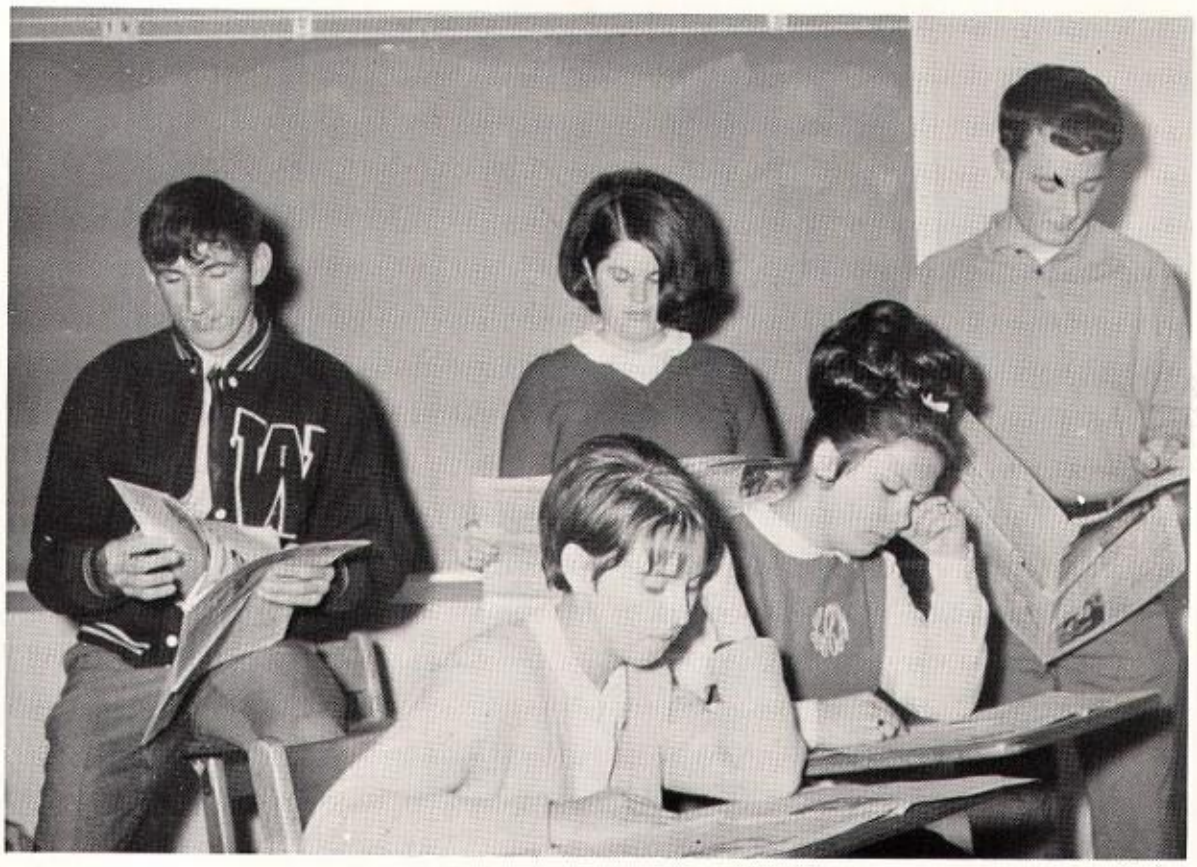
Members Robin Jackson, Terry Pagoota, and Lee Massey listen as plans are made for the PTA devotional program.

Leaving for a hospital visit are J. Jones, S. Long, S. Wood, and R. Jackson.

Mrs. Linda Teague, Bible Club adviser, assists president Susan Wood in leading a discussion concerning the upcoming PTA meeting.



Bow and Arrow Provides Students with Pleasure,



Reporters Elliott, Huneycutt, Stowe, Lindsay, and Waddell observe journalistic principles as they explore previous papers.

Juniors L. Saxon and S. Bostian distribute the latest edition of the paper.

While sports editor Abernathy acts as photographer, business and advertising manager Newnam interviews Keistler.

Bow and Arrow staff members learned principles of newspaper journalism as they provided both information and pleasure through the school paper. Monthly papers included editorials and news about local events, sports, clubs, and alumni. New features were a literary corner and a Student Council column. Columbia Scholastic Press awarded the paper a first class rating.

Meeting daily, senior editors taught junior reporters fundamentals of journalism. To learn from others, the staff exchanged newspapers with fifty schools throughout the country. Staffers attended a journalism clinic at the University of Georgia in March. Approval of the adviser and a "B" average in English were requirements to join the staff.

Co-editors Clark Kilough and Paulette Sigmon carefully, plan the coming edition of the Bow and Arrow.

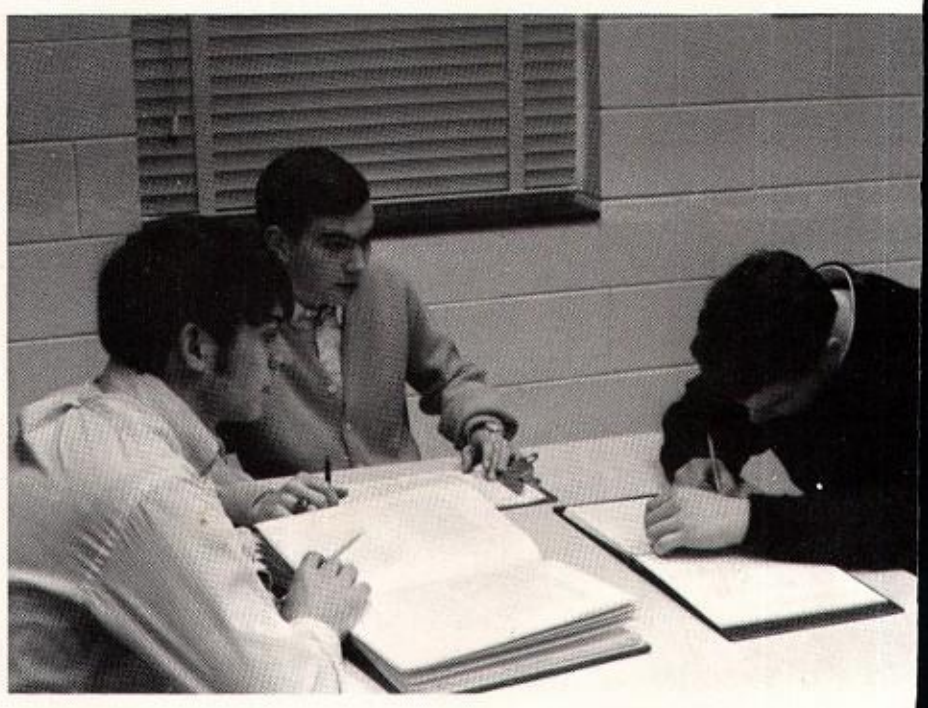
Bus Drivers Create Club for District Unification

After a long day at school, senior Pam Miller climbs into her bus before starting on her afternoon route.

All licensed school bus drivers formed a club which met monthly to unite the drivers of this school district. They served the school by providing transportation for many students and by promoting safety in driving. Responsibilities of the drivers included keeping their buses clean and well-conditioned. Bus drivers filled out weekly and monthly reports composed of bus attendance and mileage.

Club members compiled a file containing class records of all eligible drivers. This file proved to be useful in finding substitute drivers. Members of the club visited Atlanta and Six Flags over Georgia in the spring.

B. McCorkle, D. McCrorie, and S. Kiser keep daily bus drivers' records of routes, time, and unusual incidents.



Camera Club Compiles Directory for Students

Selling directories in the cafeteria lobby are club vice-president Cathy Arrowood and president Pat Beaty.

Seniors K. Hughes and P. Beaty complete the Camera Club project by stapling the Student Directories together.

To understand and to use a camera was the goal of those who joined the Camera Club. They met monthly to learn the functions and parts of a camera and to gain information about photographic techniques. Members discussed plans for a photography contest. Publishing the Student Directory was the main project of the year. For this directory, members collected the name, address, and telephone number of each student. Printed directories were sold at the end of the first semester.

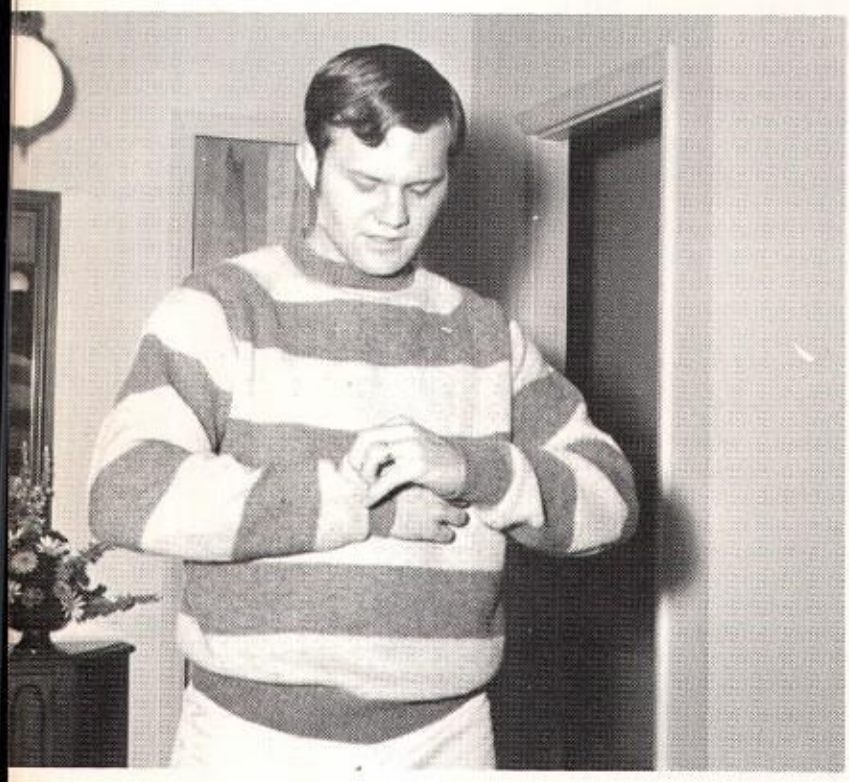
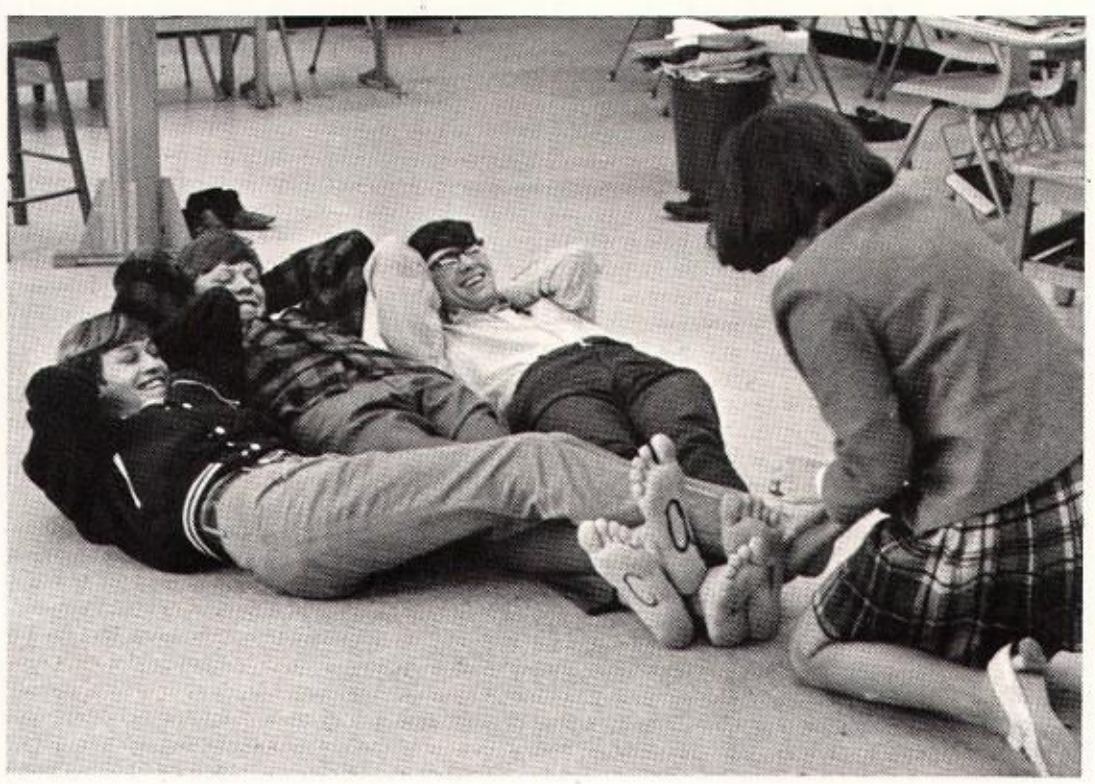
September Burger Bash Promotes Membership



Beginning a club meeting is Paul Davis, the director for Charlotte clubs.



Playing a game, C. Atwell, S. Crane and D. Ritchie have letters on their feet which K. Young attempts to arrange to produce "campus."

Campus Life Club members held a Burger Bash in September to recruit new members. They worked with other city clubs to sponsor a Halloween Haunted House. Several members attended the Living End at Jekyll Island during the Christmas holidays. This was a gathering of Campus Life members in the Southeast. At a January meeting the club participated in "Manhunt," a scavenger hunt for people. Other events included a George Washington birthday party and a "Wild Goose Chase" in the spring.

To help students understand their relationship with Christ was the goal of this organization. Through "Impact" for recreation and "Insight" for inspiration, clubbers learned more about Christ and their lives.

Several members, meeting at the home of Pam Gurley, relax while waiting for the weekly business to begin.

Chaplains Collect Food for Needy at Christmas

Mrs. Kretschmer gives Debbie Duncan final instructions as she prepares to give an inspiring morning devotion.

Providing daily devotions for the student body was the principal duty of the Chaplain Council during the year. These inspirational messages often added some meaning to otherwise routine schedules. Club members gave devotions over the public address system during the homeroom period. At Christmas they collected canned foods for needy families in the community. Each homeroom decorated a basket for presenting their contributions at the Christmas choral program. The students of each homeroom selected the council members.

Distributing Christmas contributions for needy families are chaplains, B. Garmon, D. Duncan, and S. Helton.

Club Christmas Meeting

Bringing students and various audiences delightful entertainment, five choral groups worked throughout the year. Advanced choir, mixed chorus, and the girls' chorus constituted the groups of singers who met during class every day. The choral department also created a boys' group, the Choraleers, and a girls' group, the WesTones, to represent the school in competition and to sing at school and community functions.

Beginning the year's entertainment with a patriotic note, the advanced choir sang before the P.T.A. at an October meeting. After several weeks of practice and preparation, the choruses presented a Christmas program to several audiences, including the audience of WCCB. In February, members of the group traveled to Mars Hill and Greensboro for choral clinics. March brought a county-wide choral contest in additon to a competition for small groups at Davidson. These talented Indians brought their performances to an end with a spring program in the closing weeks of the school year.

Consisting of twenty-three girls, the "WesTones" provide delightful entertainment with their sparkling voices.

Clubbers Send Christmas Greetings to Soldiers

Students who took business courses were eligible to join the Commerical Club. To develop competent business leaders, to investigate business professions, and to create interest in choosing vocations were the chief purposes of the club.

For their first project, members addressed Christmas cards to the soldiers in Vietnam. Also during the holidays they wrapped gifts for the patients in the pediatrics ward at Presbyterian Hospital. Club members kept a bulletin board in the front hall to inform students of their activities. In the spring the club toured some local businesses, which included North Carolina National Bank.

Christmas Project Assists Lowesville Orphanage

Seniors taking Cooperative Office Occupations and having satisfactory grades could become members of the COO Club. Good citizenship and a willingness to work for the club were also necessary qualifications. Club objectives were to prepare students for employment, to increase their knowledge of business occupations, and to provide opportunities to develop social graces and responsible attitudes.

Members completed all of the PTA mimeographing, which included the PTA yearbook. Several speakers on banking, crediting, and grooming spoke at club meetings. Mr. Richard Frosch, a German, spoke to the group and to several history classes on Americanism in December. For their Christmas project clubbists worked at an orphanage in Lowesville. They held a spring employer-employee banquet.

At a local orphanage, Sharon Henderson and Sandra Snipes lay new carpet for their Christmas service project.

Senior Johnnie Spears fulfills membership requirements for COO Club as she works at Haverty Furniture Company.

Working on one of their club projects, S. Henderson and G. Walters mimeograph materials for the PTA yearbook.

DECA Travels to Statewide Competition in April

At a district contest, Miss Beaty lights the candles of conscientious DECA Club members to symbolize merit.

Opening an active year, the Distributive Education Club of America held a parent's night banquet at which the club installed officers. Often honoring their chapter of DECA in placing winners, the club attended various district sales demonstration and distribution contests throughout the year. Contest members later traveled to the state convention in Winston-Salem. The club held a bosses banquet for their employers in May. Being a student in a distributive education class was the only requirement to join this club. DECA's goal was to provide opportunities for leadership development as they entered the business world of marketing and distribution.

Ricky Clement places the DECA trophy on the bookcase.

During the parent's night banquet, DECA members Kennedy, Murray, Southers, Cochrane, Clark, and Houston enjoy laughs as they participate in "The Newlywed Game."

Dionysus' Disciples Perform Play April 23-24

L. Massey, M. Godfrey, and R. Eller portray medieval characters in Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court.

Dionysus' Disciples provided great opportunities in the field of dramatics to any interested student. Meeting whenever necessary, under the new direction of Mr. Van Dyke, club members expanded their knowledge of stage mechanics while gaining experience. At the annual Festival in the Park, the Disciples presented excerpts from several plays to the gathered audience. Following several weeks of rehearsal, clubbers entertained the student body, as well as other guests, with the play We Have Always Lived in a Castle.

Members B. Sterrett, R. Suddreth, M. Mattick, and R. Hayes practice on the field before an upcoming game.

Adding splendor and excitement to football and basketball games and to pep rallies, the award-winning team of majorettes displayed its many skills in baton twirling. Bearing a new name and being a combination of former Lettergirls and Crystalettes, the newly-organized Indianettes performed lively dance routines.

Under the leadership of a new director, Mr. Cooper, the band performed throughout the year. Adding zest to the routines of the majorettes and Indianettes or performing alone, the band caught the attention of its audiences, as they marched in step for various formations and played a variety of tunes.

These groups strove to master their art as they practiced daily during sixth period and often after school. Participating in concerts, competing in contests, and marching in parades, these talented teams provided entertainment for varied audiences.

Serving as majorettes are co-head Pam Clark, Kathy Newnam, head Wanda Grice, Linda Stokes, and Freida Keever.

FFA Members Compete in Four Area Contests

Future Farmers of America participated in several contests with area high schools throughout the year. They competed in a tool identification contest held at East Mecklenburg High School in December. Other competitions included a land judging contest in March, a livestock judging contest, and a forestry contest in April. Selling holly in winter, vegetable and other plants in the spring, clubbers managed the school greenhouse. Club members attended the state convention in Raleigh in June. They were eligible to attend a summer camp at White Lake. To gain in leadership training for their future vocation and to sponsor school improvement projects was the main purpose of this club.

For their first project the Future Homemakers of America served refreshments at the PTA Open House in October. Several members attended the district rally in Bessemer City. Members also visited Piedmont Natural Gas for a program of Christmas ideas. Visitors from the Duke Power Company presented the March program, which included suggestions for spring entertainment. A father-daughter dinner held in April was the setting for installation of the new officers. FHA members enjoyed a picnic ending the year at Lake Norman.

Club members strove to learn better living so that their futures would be better. Anyone who had taken a home economics course was eligible to join.

Spanish Club opened the year with slides, souvenirs, and eventful memories of Chile, presented by summer exchange student Patty Spencer. A fiesta brightened the spirits of club members in December as they enjoyed music, decorations, and entertainment Spanish style. After other meetings with guest speakers and slides, the Spanish clubbers ended the year with a party at which they sang, ate, and made merry in the fashion of all true-hearted Spaniards. Meeting monthly, the Spanish Club also drew up a new constitution. Any student taking a Spanish course was eligible to join.

Christmas Play for Club

French Club members viewed a slide tour of Europe at the October meeting, given by Jan Paris. Mr. Brittain, a student teacher from Mars Hill College, showed slides of his trip to France at the November meeting. For the December program, the fourth and fifth year students presented the poem "The Night Before Christmas" in French. They held the yearly banquet in the spring.

To learn more about France, its people, and its customs was the purpose of the French Club. Anyone who had taken at least one year of French was eligible to join.

Johan Cornell Comments on Swedish Customs

Members of Latin Club discuss Swedish customs with guest speaker Johan Cornell, an Olympic exchange student.

Students with a special interest in Latin met monthly under the sponsorship of a new adviser, Miss Divine. Members strove to learn more of other countries and of the Roman heritage. Among guest speakers were Marsha Hill, summer exchange student to Australia, and foreign exchange student from Sweden, Johan Cornell. Singing Latin Christmas carols, exchanging Roman presents, and eating, the clubbers gaily observed the Christmas season. In celebration of the Ides of March, the club held a Latin banquet at which members presented authentic Roman entertainment as everyone enjoyed the Roman menu and Roman apparel. Ending the year, members of the club gave a presentation of Terence's comedy The Mother-in-law.

Club Organizes 'Trading Post' for Student Use

Member D. Townsend joins in a game of "Simon Says" while keeping the children whose parents attend night school.

Teacher-aides Linda Hix and Brenda Sutton listen attentively as Miss Cook gives them their instructions.

Composed of students interested in teaching careers, FTA sponsored education-oriented projects to familiarize the members with this field. Resuming old responsibilities, Future Teachers of America served as guides at PTA open house. Members offered services as teacher aides. They operated a bi-weekly Adult Education Child Care Service during the night school sessions. Under leadership of Mrs. Cook, a new adviser, the twenty-five members established an unprecedented "Trading Post" which supervised sales and exchanges between students. Meeting monthly, clubbers planned a tutoring service, co-sponsorship of a foreign exchange student, and informal discussions with teachers and counselors concerning colleges. Members observed the Christmas holidays and the end of school with social functions.

Library Members Campaign for Lost Materials

The "Pages of West Mecklenburg" strove to promote interest in the use of the well-equipped library. Each member was a library assistant during a class period. They helped carry out the Gaylord Book Charging Card System developed by the new librarians.

Club members made displays introducing new books and giving important library information. Because of the loss of materials from the library in the past few years, the "pages" initiated an extensive campaign to recover them. To allow students to cut pictures from old magazines, club members took donations of publications for the library's use.

Conscientious library assistants work diligently to arrange an appealing display of books for the library.

After being kidnapped, the inductees of the National Honor Society eat supper at the Open Kitchen.

Increasing its membership from twenty-four people to sixty-one, the National Honor Society inducted eight seniors and twenty-nine juniors on February 19. Highlighting the initiation, members enjoyed food at the Open Kitchen. Students became members on the basis of outstanding qualities in leadership, scholarship, character, and service.

Under the direction of new advisers Mrs. White and Mrs. Harris, members revised the Student Handbook. In the spring, delegates attended a state-wide convention at Wingate College.

Key Club members worked to serve the school and community as they met once a week. They collected toys from the students at Christmas for the mentally retarded children at the Western Carolina center in Morganton. During study halls, members checked cars in the parking lot for permits. Another of their duties was raising and lowering the flag each day. Several members attended the national convention, held in Charlotte.

Key clubbers selected new members for service qualities and for high scholastic averages. Teacher approval was also necessary. In November and May, they initiated new members.

Provide Useful Services

Carrying out one of her duties as a Keyette, senior Penni McCall sells refreshments at a home basketball game.

As part of a project to improve the school grounds, Keyettes plant flowers around the sign at the entrance.

To honor outstanding girls who would serve the school in various ways, the Keyette club became a reality in early fall. Teachers recommended twenty-one charter members, who were chosen for their citizenship qualities and scholastic averages. These members soon elected nine more.

Projects included planting flowers in several places around the school. Before the holiday vacation, Keyettes erected and decorated a Christmas tree in the front hall. Using egg shells and bottles, they made candle holders for the teachers. Other projects included providing recreation and parties for patients at the local hsopitals and nursing homes that the club members visited. In the spring they visited the hospital in Morganton.

Orchestra Participates in N.C. Spring Festival

Orchestra members attended a concert presented by the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra in October at Johnson C. Smith University. Trips made to rehearsals of the Charlotte Opera introduced them to another area of music. Clubbers supplied entertainment for students at their Christmas program and at an assembly with the choirs. To achieve excellent ratings, orchestra members rehearsed for competition in the North Carolina Orchestra Festival held in Greensboro.

Meeting each school day, the orchestra gave students the opportunity to perform in a group and acquainted them with various types of orchestral literature. The group encouraged junior high school students to become members by presenting concerts at Coulwood, Wilson, and Spaugh.

K. Seville, L. Marks, J. Jones, G. Bullock, and D. Baxley follow their music diligently during orchestra practice.

Politicians Join Mars Hill in Poverty Program

Sheila Bridges watches Gary Bridges and Mr. Webb load the van before they begin their trip to Mars Hill College.

To make students aware of events on the political scene, several politicians spoke to the Political Science Club. Dr. John Robbins, a professor at UNC-C, spoke in October. Former city councilman Craig Lawing discussed the teen-ager's role in politics. In January several members made a field trip to Mars Hill College where they participated in the poverty program of Madison County. They reported their findings when they returned. Clubbers visited the state legislature during a spring trip to Raleigh.

Membership was open to anyone interested in current politics, local or national. In its second year the club met bi-weekly to show the student's place in politics.

Red Cross Installs Officers at Winter Banquet

Meeting monthly, Red Cross Youth Club members strove to carry on the work of the Red Cross and to serve the school and community. Early in the year homeroom representatives collected money from the students in their enrollment drive. They assisted the PTA with its annual clothing drive. Wounded soldiers received cartoon and puzzle booklets made by members of the club.

Club members attended a training camp for the officers at Camp Thunderbird in October. They installed officers at a November banquet. Members went to programs sponsored by the local Red Cross chapter house during the year.

Pharmacist Speaks of Careers to Science Club

Science Club membership was open to any student interested in science. Its chief purpose was to acquaint the members with education and job opportunities in this field. Clubbers viewed a film on cancer research at their September meeting. Mr. Samuel Thorne, a local pharmacist, spoke of the requirements for a vocation in pharmacy. In February the group sponsored a science fair, where they exhibited projects made by the science students. The open house gave visitors the opportunity to tour the science facilities. A spring party at Lake Norman was the year's last activity.

Student Council Helps in Getting Passage of New

After weeks of planning and campaigning, nervous Student Council students delivered speeches before elections in March of 1969. With great plans and ambitions for a prosperous year, elected students officially took their positions at the opening of school in September.

Meeting with the general Student Council every two weeks, officers attempted to improve student citizenship through providing a sound program of leadership. The council also worked to stimulate communication between students, faculty, and administration and to promote a varied program of extra-curricular activities. An executive council, consisting of all committee chairmen and representatives from the TOMAHAWK and BOW AND ARROW, met with the Student Council officers every two weeks. For more equal representation, two students-at-large from each class were invited to join with the Student Council in discussing future plans.

All members of the council worked together throughout the year to instill student co-operation and to provide the student body with everything from Christmas dances to discussion groups.

Newly - Created Activities

To further its work, the Student Council included nine committees. Chairmen were members of the Executive Council, which discussed council activities. Linda Small and Dixon Armstrong headed the School Spirit Committee, which publicized athletic events, organized pep rallies, and sold booster tags. Brenda Garmon and Steve Helton served as co-chairmen of the new Human Relations Committee. Carol Welfare, chairman of the Activities Committee, planned social events, secured bands, and decorated for dances. Charlotte Exchange Student Committee assisted foreign exchange students and tried to make their visits pleasant. Headed by Paulette Sigmon, members aided in selection of travelers aboard and of host families here. House and Grounds Committee chairman Debbie Townsend strove for improvements of the campus. Committee members sponsored the homeroom door decoration contest at Christmas.

Gary Bridges led the Constitution Committee. Main revisions were inclusion of members-at-large, a dress code, a point system, and two new committees. Under Jerry Blackwelder, the Point System Committee worked on drawing a point system. The newly-revised constitution made provisions for later addition of a point system. Making and distributing ballots and collecting and tabulating votes composed the duties of the Elections Committee. Led by Bobby Helms, this committee organized elections. Publicity Committee members publicized various school activities and worked on a calendar. Penni McCall served as chairman.

Committee members work to complete a revision of the constitution to present at an upcoming council meeting.

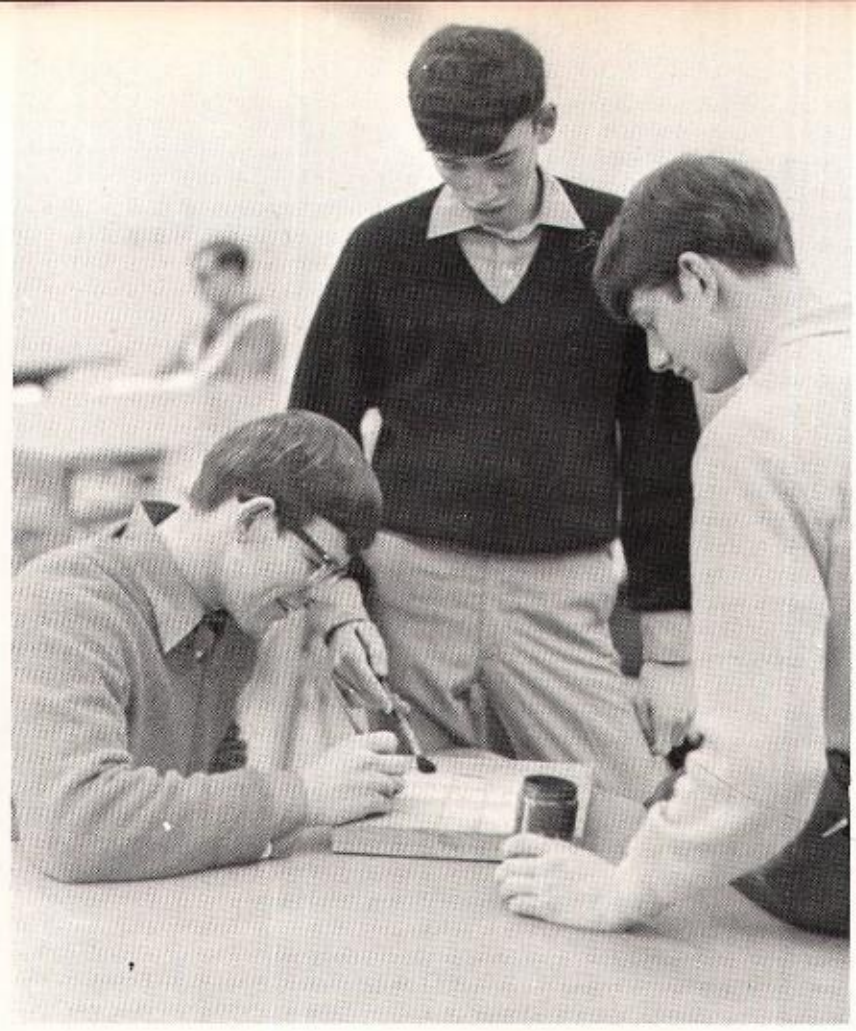
Club Plaques by ICC Adorn Cafeteria Walls

Interclub Council members Keistler, Cathey, Wood, and Aldridge review half-time activity plans for Homecoming.



Beginning work on their plaque for the cafeteria are VICA members Bobby Kelly, Billy Joy, and Darrell Kidd.

Composed of all the club presidents, Interclub Council was a central unit of extracurricular activity. Monthly, members discussed the problems of the various clubs. A representative sent to the Student Council expressed the council's views. Interclub Council chose the theme of "Rebels' Second Defeat" and carried it out for the Homecoming activities. They organized the sponsors and arranged for the half-time program. To represent each club, council members made plaques which they placed in the cafeteria in the spring.

As the VICA project mechanical robot Allen Wrench wins awards in the district contest and at the Metrolina Fair.

Preparing youth for leadership in the world of employment was the main goal of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. Active members enrolled in a vocations course while associate members had taken such a course previously.

Their project for the Metrolina Fair was a robot, Allen Wrench, built by the vocation classes. Fund-raising projects included a pancake supper, a car wash, a booster decal sale and a doughnut sale. Cleaning the school grounds was another service provided by this group. Clubbers attended the regional convention in Washington, D. C., and the state convention in Raleigh.

Curriculum editor B. Sipe alphabetizes the new annuals.

After selecting the theme, "There's a place," in February of the previous year, Tomahawk staffers attempted to tell the West story. With additional innovations, they strived to continue the traditions of former annuals which had received first place and medalist awards from the Columbia Scholastic Press. By writing headlines and copy and by taking pictures, staff members rushed to meet each of four major deadlines. The Tomahawk staff learned journalistic principles through daily classes.

Business staffers helped in financing the annual by selling advertisements to community businesses and subscriptions and pictures to students. They also sold plastic covers at the annual signing party in May.

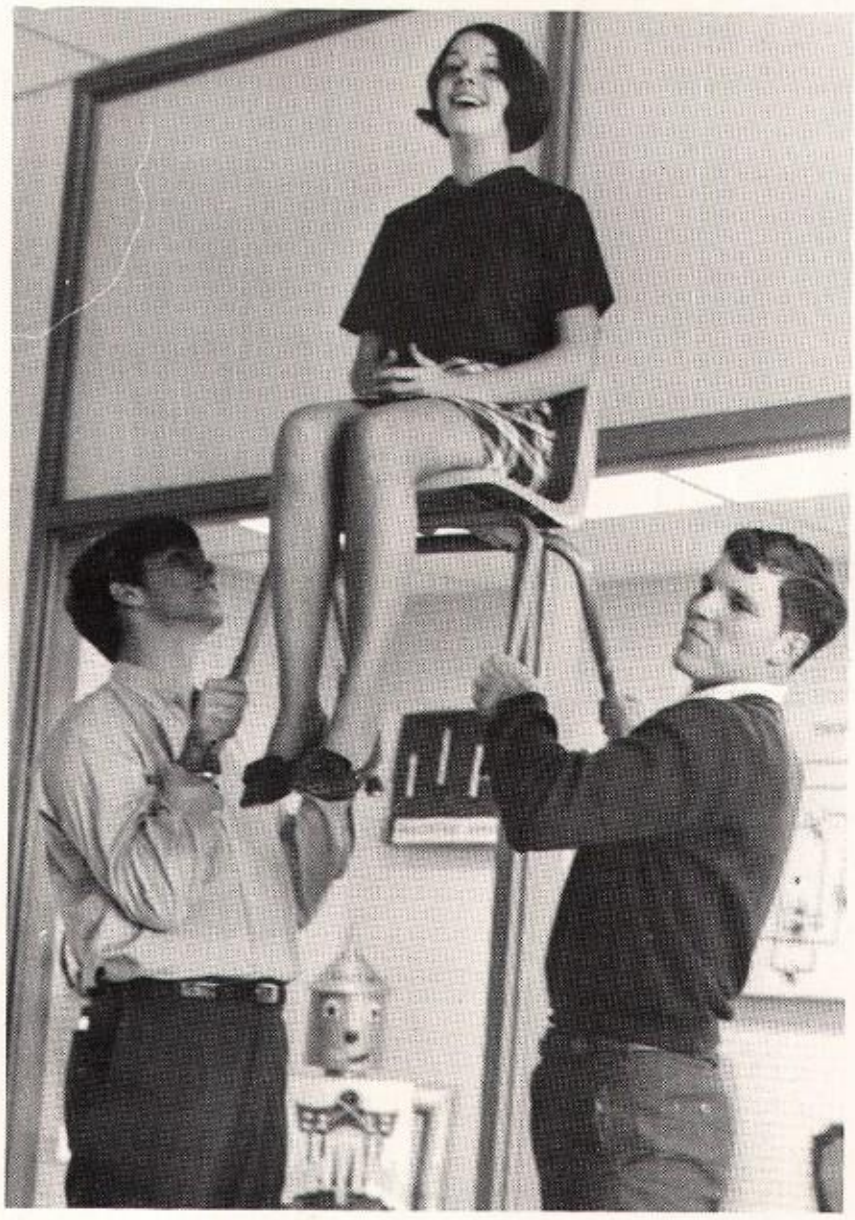
Class Officers Display Extraordinary Qualities

Preparing for actual driving experience, Debbie Porter waits patiently for directions from the instructor.



Sophomores Rusty Meacham and Henry Ervin show their mischievousness by hoisting Carol Kyaw into the air.

As their high school career began, sophomores entered West with at least two goals in mind – to increase their knowledge and to make a place for themselves in the school. Usual confusion of the first day was overcome with the help of upperclassmen. Something new, a social and orientation, were held September 11 in the cafeteria. The Cruel Deception provided musical entertainment, and the orientation committee served refreshments. Mrs. Mary Harris and Mr. Patrick Webb, class advisers, and a hard-working committee made arrangements for the event. It helped the students get better acquainted with the school and other students.

Within the first few months, sophomores elected their class officers. Another task accomplished was taking the Differential Aptitude Tests and Stanford Achievement Tests in the spring. These helped to determine a vocation. Sophomores took courses such as world history, biology, English II, physical education, driver education, and some electives.

As the year ended, sophomores had become a part of West through class attendance and study and through participation in activities.

R. Watson and M. Kelly provide music for the sophomore social.

Juniors Find a Place, Fill Important Positions

Bursting with enthusiasm, juniors came back ready to start a new and exciting year. First was the planning of the annual Junior-Senior Prom to be held on May 16, 1970, at Independence High School. Many hard hours of work were necessary to finish all decorations. Christmas card sales under the direction of Mr. Schrum financed the prom. Lugging these cards from class to class during October, November, and the first of December, juniors endeavored to reach their goal.

Another activity undertaken was the selection of the class best citizen and class beauties. Also, outstanding students with scholastic and leadership abilities became members of the Honor Society, Key Club, and the Keyette Club.

Next, on October 25, 1969, juniors faced the P.S.A.T. These tests prepared them for the college board tests in their senior year.

Under the C.E.S.P. program, juniors obtained the chance to spend an exciting and interesting summer abroad by living with a foreign family. Possessing the traits of honesty and good citizenship and having taken two years of a foreign language were requirements for applying to be an exchange student.

Anticipating class rings was exciting. Juniors waited anxiously for the day when they could finally order their rings.

Ricky Auten assists Christmas card chairman Belinda Auman as she records the sales and busily counts money which has been turned in during homeroom.

Jimmy Newton sorts mail and places it in teachers' office boxes.

Anxiously Await Opportunity To Order Class Rings

Leaving school after a busy day, Donnie Stephenson and Donna Cannon look forward to a leisurely afternoon.

Mrs. Brumfield prepares junior Wendell Elliott for his class picture taken on October 1, in the health room.

Sandy Hudson, a teen board representative, braves the cold to ride on the Belk's float in the Carrousel parade.

As Leaders of Class of Having reached the coveted status of a senior, members of the Class of 1970 proceeded with dreams for the future. Beginning with the first day, seniors felt the excitement and anticipation of their last year. Expressing pride in their class, seniors loyally supported all athletic events.

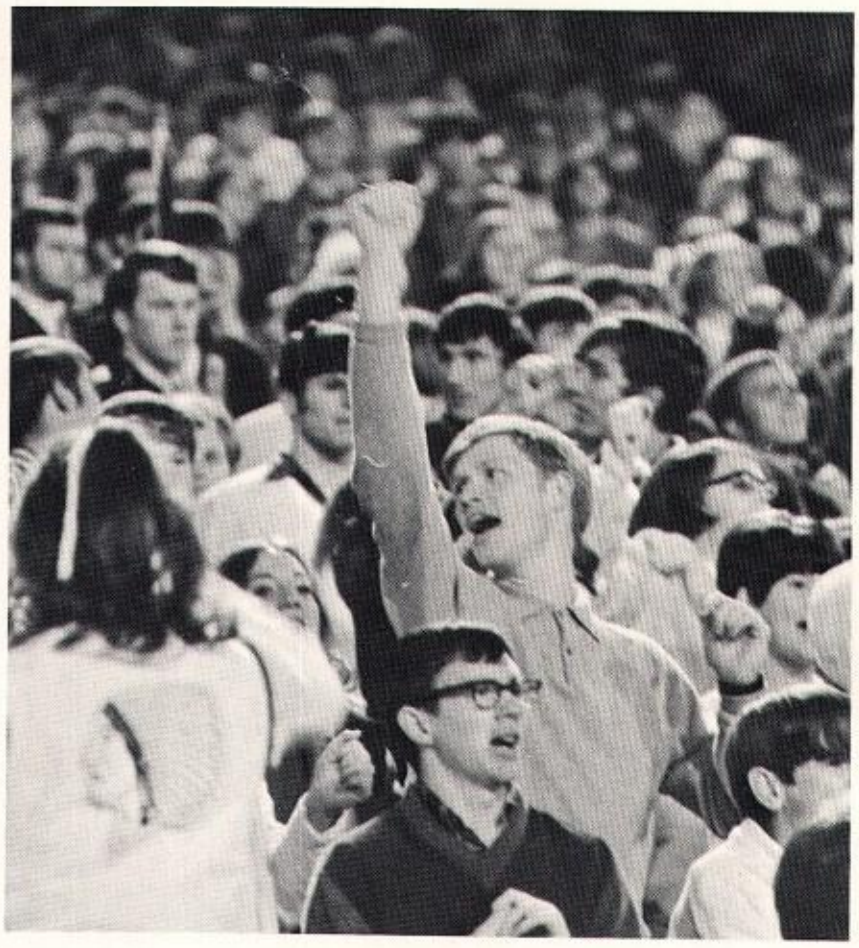
September 12 marked an important day when seniors received their rings. Seniors enjoyed the privilege of selecting the Carrousel Princess, Miss Tomahawk, and Mr. and Miss West. The highlight came in December when the Senior Class chose a white carnation tipped in maroon as the class flower and "Let us all be concerned with the future for we will spend the rest of our lives there" as the class motto. Seniors also chose to give the school a senior patio adjacent to the cafeteria. In order to finance the gift, the class once again sponsored the Spring Follies.

On November 25 seniors prepared for graduation by ordering calling cards and announcements. College board examinations, given throughout the year, helped students toward their college entrance.

Members of the Senior Class warmly welcomed Tina Hoeg-Hagen, foreign exchange student from Denmark. Tina participated in many extracurricular activities during her stay with the McMichael family.

Juniors honored seniors at the annual prom held on May 16. Students danced to the music of Loonis McGlohen and his Orchestra at the Independence High School Mall.

After a year filled with excitement and accomplishment, seniors proudly marched forward to receive their long-awaited diplomas on June 3 at Ovens Auditorium. The Class of 1970 then stepped forward to find their place in the world.



Exuberantly cheering the team, Howard Plummer leads the seniors in tension-filled game with Myers Park.

Preparing for graduation, Terre Hatley and Harry Whicker order calling cards and announcements from Mr. Loy.

70, Crisp, Wylie, Byrum, Lanier Discover Place

After the breakdown of their car, seniors Lynda McMichael and Patty Spencer end up pushing exchange student Tina Hoeg-Hagen in the Carrousel parade.

Portraying the modern girl, Tacky Indian Day winner Jimmy Blair parades before students.

A gift from past cheerleaders, the tomahawk bearing the Alma Mater always reminds students of unforgotten years.

There's a Place –

In Curriculum . . . classes, teachers, term papers, tests, experiments

In Student Life . . . "Bali Ha'i," awards,
"Tacky Indian Day," barbecue, spirit

In Sports . . . teams, "Indians," victory, sportsmanship, defeat

In Organizations . . . initiations, service, honor, challenges

In Classes . . . "Battle Cry," schedules, friendship, class rings, graduation

In Advertisements . . . Shoney's, publications, merchants, community

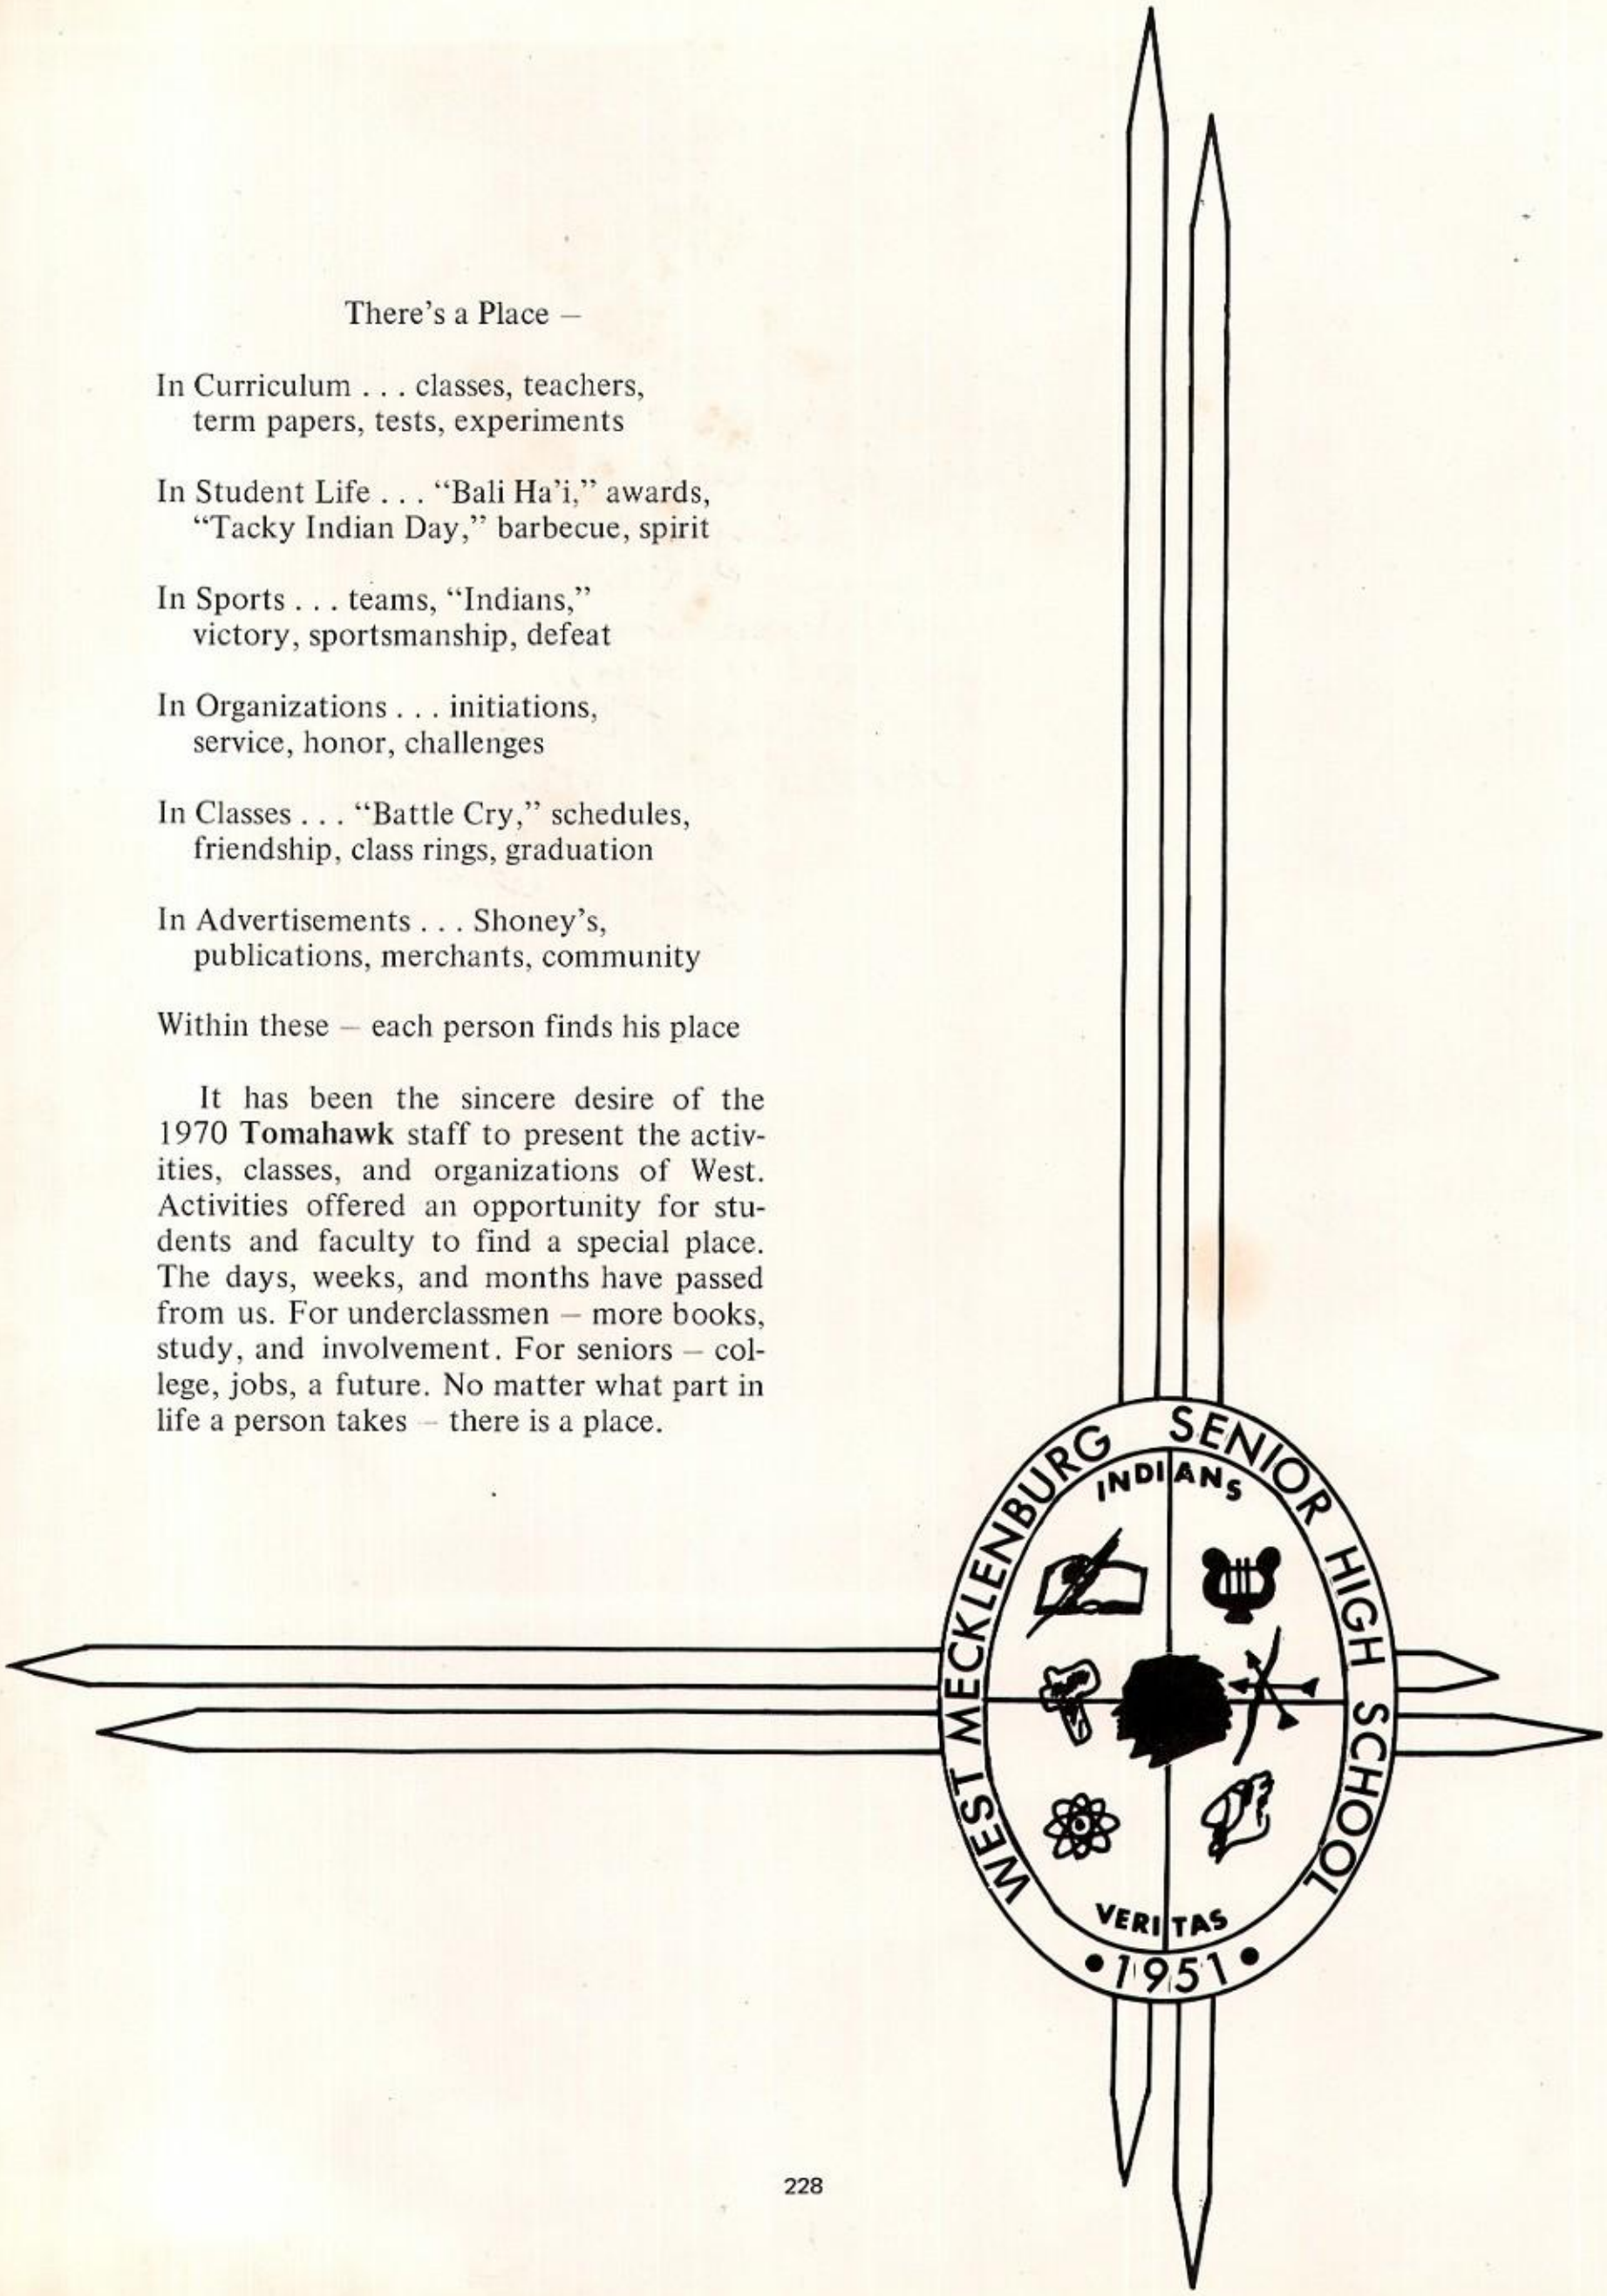
Within these – each person finds his place

It has been the sincere desire of the 1970 Tomahawk staff to present the activities, classes, and organizations of West. Activities offered an opportunity for students and faculty to find a special place. The days, weeks, and months have passed from us. For underclassmen – more books, study, and involvement. For seniors – college, jobs, a future. No matter what part in life a person takes – there is a place.



Marion,

I have enjoyed being in homeroom with a crafty girl like you. You are too crazy to be true. See ya! next year.

a friend always

To one of the sweetest girls
here at West.
I have enjoyed
being in a Class
with you (English, and U.S. History).
I hope your Dreams
Come true. May God
Love be with Betty you.

Marian,
You are really great
Hope that says a lot
you will go far in life.
Be good & stay sweet
Love ya!

Marian,
It has been great knowing you this year.
Maybe next year we'll be in a class again. And I will tell you some more things about my life. I don't funny that it is pathetic. I don't think there is anything as funny as you. Be sweet and don't get into any trouble. O.K.
Love,
Jimmy Paxton

Marian,
It has been My pleasure
knowing you for the past years. This is not the end yet and I hope the end
never came but-

Marian,
It's been wonderful knowing and being with you the past 11 years; I enjoyed "almost" every bit of it. You know, sometimes you give me a pretty hard time, but we always overcome it. So, stay sweet and I will always remember you. Love Ya.

Rickey Hayes

Marian
It really has been nice going to school with you this year and knowing that I was your friend once again this year.

Charles Brooks

Marian, It has been great with you these past three years and I hope all your dreams will come true. Have a great summer.

Always,

Marian,
It has been nice
knowing you this year.
I hope for many more years in the feature.
I think you are the funniest person at the school with the exception of me (smile). I hope I will get to see you this summer. I hope you are not working. I hope you and yours the best of luck in the future. You are the clair of the history class without you it would be dull. I hope
I will see you next year
Well I see you of course we don't know what might happen during the summer.
Lots of Luck in the future.

Love Christine (Chris)
